TAFT ASKS REDUCTION OF COTTON SCHEDULE

President in Message to Congress on Report of the Tariff Board Points Out Excessive Duties

WASHINGTON, March 26.—A reduction of the tariff on cotton manufactures is asked for by President Taft in a message sent to Congress today along with the report of the tariff board on Schedule I.

"I base this recommendation," said the President, "on the declaration of the platform on which I was elected—that a reasonable protective tariff should be adjusted to the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad."

The President has tried to eliminate the technicalities which would naturally accompany such a report and shows that while the cost of weaving in many instances is higher in this country than abroad, the ultimate consumer makes it up by paying high prices for the finished product. The President's message follows:

The President's Message.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In several messages to Congress I have expressed my wish for a revision of the present tariff, schedule by schedule, when justified by an adequate knowledge of the facts regarding each industry, as showed by an impartial and non-partisan inquiry. In order to secure such an impartial inquiry into the facts, I established, under the authority vested in me by law, a tariff board of five members. On December 20, 1911, I transmitted to the Congress a report of the board on schedule K, wool and manufacturers of). The board was unanimous in its findings of fact and on the basis of these findings I recommended a revision of that schedule.

I now transmit a report of the tariff board on schedule I (cotton manufactures). In this report also the board is unanimous in its findings. On the basis of the report, I now recommend that the congress proceed to a consideration of this schedule with a view to its revision and a reduction of its rates.

I base this recommendation on the declaration of the platform on which I was elected, that a reasonable protective tariff should be adjusted to the difference of cost of production at home and abroad.

The report of the board shows the difficulty of stating in general terms difference in cost of production for a great variety of cotton manufactures.

Cost of Production.

In the manufacture of cotton cloth there are three main branches of the industry, spinning, weaving and finishing. The report shows that the cost of spinning cotton yarn in this country is greater than in the leading competing country. In the case of ordinary warp and filling yarns

Champ Clark Will Not Have Name on Bay State Ballot

Makes Decision Because of the Possible Candidacy of Governor Foss.

No primary presidential ticket will be put in the field in Massachusetts for Champ Clark. It was decided today, following the receipt of a telegram from the Speaker by George Fred Williams. The telegram was as follows:

Washington, March 26, 1912.

George Fred Williams, Boston, Mass.

In view of Governor Foss' announced intention to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President, it is my desire that my friends in Massachusetts will not present my name upon the primary ballot. My desire is to be constructive and not destructive in my Democracy. I thank my Massachusetts friends for their evidence of good will. In his own State I do not wish to contest with Governor Foss for delegates to the convention.

(Signed) CHAMP CLARK.

ACQUITTED IN BOLDUC CASE

Mrs. Annie Reid, Miss Mary O'Neil and Dr. Ferguson Are Cleared by Jury.

Mrs. Annie M. Reed fainted and Miss Mary A. O'Neil went into hysterics and had to be carried into an ante room when the jury in the Bolduc case reported "Not guilty" today for Mrs. Reed, Miss O'Neil and Dr. John D. Ferguson of Manchester, N. H.

The case against Mrs. Jennie M. Shattuck, who had previously pleaded guilty, is placed on file.

The jury had reached an agreement last night at 10:20, having been out six hours. The verdict was sealed and was opened at 9:30 before Judge Chase in the second session of the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court today.

Mrs. Reed was charged with being principal in the alleged medical treatment which resulted in the death of Marie Bolduc a pretty mill girl from Manchester. The strain on Mrs. Reed's mind had been heavy, as this was the second trial. When the words "Not guilty" came to her the strain was too much. She fell unconscious in the dock.

Miss Mary A. O'Neil, secretary to Dr. Ferguson, was affected just as much. Miss O'Neil was charged with being an accessory, as was Dr. Ferguson. He heard the verdict with composure.

Were Defended by Coakley.

Dr. Ferguson and Miss O'Neil had been defended up to last Friday by Timothy W. Coakley, who was excluded from the court that day by Judge Chase and who is now at Pierce Farm for observation as to his sanity.

As soon as the verdict was returned, freeing all three, Assistant District Attorney Thomas D. Lavelle, who conducted the prosecution, moved that the case against Mrs. Jennie M. Shattuck be placed on file. It was in Mrs. Shattuck's house in Jamaica Plain that the body of the girl was found. Mrs. Shattuck had pleaded guilty to being an accessory. The case was filed.

The Second Trial.

The first trial of this case ended in a disagreement of the jurors. When the case was first brought into court, Mrs. Hattie M. Hazlett a domestic in the home of Mrs. Jennie Shattuck, where the partially dismembered body of the girl was found, was accused as an accessory but her case was not pressed.

In the first trial all the defendants pleaded not guilty to the charge. At that time, Miss O'Neil was employed as a principal with Miss Reed, but the charge was later changed to that of an accessory.

Just before the second trial began Mrs. Shattuck was unable to retain her counsel, and she pleaded guilty to the charge lodged against her.

Government's Contention.

During both trials, the government contended that the girl was brought to the home of Mrs. Reed at No. 271 Tremont street, by Dr. Ferguson and Miss O'Neil. It is claimed that Mrs. Reed illegally treated her and then sent her to the Jamaica Plain house.

In the retrial, after Mrs. Shattuck had pleaded guilty, she testified that Ferguson came to her a few days before the body was found and asked her to take charge of a girl who was complaining. She consented to this. The girl died two days after her arrival at the house. She claimed that she telephoned for Dr. Ferguson, and he came to the house. He was accompanied by Miss O'Neil, who threw a sheet over the body.

The jury in the first trial were out for nearly twenty hours, when they were discharged on announcing that they could not agree on a verdict.

$3,000 DAMAGE IS DONE BY FIRE IN WEST MEDFORD

Three thousand dollars' damage was done by a fire which burned out the two-family house at No. 64 Harvard avenue, West Medford, today. The house is occupied by W. H. Taylor and C. A. Weeks and is owned by the George Spaulding estate. It started under the cellar stairs probably through spontaneous combustion, worked up between partitions and was attacking the roof when the firemen got it under control.

BLUEFIELDS, W. Va., March 26.—Eighty miners were entombed by an explosion in a coal mine at Jed, W. Va., at 7:30 a. m. today.

DORCHESTER GIRL TAKES THE VEIL

Sister Marion Stanislaus is to be the name hereafter of Miss Florence I. Hanlon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Hanlon of No. 31 Florida street, Dorchester. She has just taken the brown habit of the teaching order of the Sisters of Charity at the Convent of St. St. Vincent, Halifax, N. S., having finished her novitiate of six months. Miss Hanlon is twenty-one years old, and was educated in the Dorchester schools. Her father is a well-known builder.

GUARD MAN IN EXTORTION CASE

Quincy Police Fear for Life of Recipient of "Black Hand" Letter.

Extraordinary measures were taken in Quincy District Court today to protect Pasquale Colalicca from assassination when three other young men were arraigned on charges of attempting to extort money from Colalicca by means of a "Black Hand" postcard.

The court room was filled with Italians. When Colalicca passed through the throng to the rail, two threats were hissed into his ears. Colalicca could, or said he could not, tell who threatened him.

Police Inspector Alfred W. Goodhue had men go through the crowd and break up the mass of spectators into groups so no opportunity for a concerted attack on Colalicca could be made with impunity.

Special Police Guard.

After the hearing, when the three defendants had been held in bonds till tomorrow, a special policeman, in plain clothes, was detailed to attend Colalicca all the time to protect him. The name of the guard was withheld, so he could work more effectively. In addition to the two threats in court, others had been made to the complainant since the arrest of the suspects.

The three prisoners are Dominico Leo, twenty-six years old, of No. 9 Phipps street; Antonio Micarone, twenty-three, of No. 58 Main street, and Nicolo Fartia, eighteen, of No. 82 Union street, Quincy.

The men have been employed with Colalicca at an iron foundry in Braintree. Colalicca has worked there three or four years. He is twenty years old, single, and is known to have saved money. He boards at No. 58 Union street, Quincy.

Threat on Post Card.

Last Friday night Colalicca found at his room a post card, written in Italian. The substance of the writing was this:

PUT ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS BEHIND THE FIRST TREE FROM THE BRAINTREE LINE IN THE WOODS OFF HIGH STREET BY SATURDAY MIDNIGHT OR YOU WILL BE KILLED.

BLACK HAND.

Colalicca took the card to Inspector Goodhue, who, with Patrolman David Farrell and Colalicca, watched in the woods all Saturday night. Nobody appeared. Yesterday morning the inspector went to the Braintree foundry with three "John Doe" warrants. He called for Leo, Micarone and Fartia, questioned them, then brought them took them to the Quincy police station.

In court the inspector asked continuances, and Leo and Micarone were held in $500 each and Fartia in $1,000.

"Country-less Baby" Is Now an American

Little Georgianna Costa-Branca, Born on Long Wharf, Enters Land of the Free.

Georgianna Costa-Branca, the "baby without a country," now has a country. She was officially and legally today declared an American.

The two weeks' old baby girl, who was born in the United States immigrant station on Long wharf to Mrs. Manuel Costa-Branca, who was on her way to join her husband in Scituate, having arrived on the steamer Canopic from the Azores, was admitted to the United States today, when a telegram was sent her father to come to Boston and get his wife and baby.

The case of the immigrant child was one without precedent in the history of the Immigrant Bureau during the last few years. The immigrant detention quarters are technically a part of the ship. Persons held there are not, technically, in the United States, but are on board the ship. So the baby was not born in this country.

She was born to Portuguese parents, on a British boat. According to Portuguese law, she was English. According to English law, she was Portuguese. But now she is American.

Man Who Ran First Horse Car Is Dead

Fred L. Hoole Drove Through City Streets Fifty-two Years Ago Today.

Fifty-two years to a day from when he held the reins over the horses that drew the first horse car through Boston, Fred L. Hoole is dead at his home, No. 102 Prospect street, Cambridge, at the age of seventy-five years.

Born in Norway, Me., he came to Boston when young and entered the employ of the Cambridge railroad, serving as a driver a number of years, he later became a conductor. On leaving the railroad, Mr. Hoole became a confectioner, and later went into business for himself.

Mr. Hoole was one of the fifteen men to organize the New England Order of Protection and a charter member of Park Ian Lodge. He served both as a Grand and Supreme officer, and was a member of Dunster Lodge, I. O. O. F., and a former member of Cambridge Encampment.

Chicago Beef Men Acquitted Government Loses Big Suit

Ten Millionaires Go Free

Jury in Famous Case Reaches a Verdict After Taking Many Ballots.

CHICAGO, March 26.—The ten millionaire packers charged with criminal conspiracy in restraint of trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, were declared not guilty today.

The verdict was brought in by a jury that had been out since 4:40 o'clock last evening. A number of ballots were taken. The verdict was delivered before a crowded courtroom shortly after noon.

The result came as a blow to the prosecution, which had confidently predicted this the Kings of Packing Town would be convicted, following the refusal of the packers to enter any evidence in their own behalf.

The verdict today ends a fight of nine years by the government against the Beef Trust. It is the second complete victory for the packers, the first having come five years ago when Judge Humphrey gave the beef barons his famous "immunity bath."

Early Rumor of "Guilty."

Shortly before the returning of the verdict there was a widely circulated report that eight of the accused packers had been found guilty, and that the jury was in disagreement in the cases of two others.

This report followed another that Juror H. I. Buckin, whose illness delayed the final ending of the trial last week, had weakened under the terrific nervous strain of the discussion in the jury room.

Anxious to hear the fate of the millionaire packers, a crowd gathered early at the federal building. It was expected the jury would report shortly after the time for opening.

According to rumors the jury took one ballot after five hours of debate last night. After two hours more they went to their hotel. Early today they were taken back to their quarters in the federal building to resume deliberation.

Judge Carpenter waited within telephone call for the greater part of the night and was ready to give any additional instructions or furnish any of the documents the jurors might desire.

History of the Case.

The jury's verdict terminated a nine years' battle by various government administrations and local federal attorneys to punish the beef packers. The men were charged with being guilty of forming and fostering "one of the most complete and systematic engines for the suppression of competition known in the industries of the world."

It was the longest "trust-busting" fight ever waged under the Sherman anti-trust law. The last chapter of it was sensational. It was started by United States Judge K. M. Landis after the government had spent $1,000,000 on investigation which failed. Judge Landis' first Grand Jury indicted only a few corporations.

The court threw this indictment out and startled the judiciary of the country and the government authorities by ordering another Grand Jury inquiry.

Following these transactions Judge Landis and the then United States Attorney, Edwin W. Sims, came to a bitter disagreement, which resulted that the latter had little to do with the case thereafter. His ultimate successor and then assistant, James H. Wilkerson, took the important position of principal in the second inquiry. It was this investigation which resulted in the trial just closed. Judge Landis was given credit for this, inasmuch as it is generally widely intimated that the government's heart was not in the case.

Wrangle for Three Months.

For nearly three months witnesses told their story to the jurors. At every step there was a legal wrangle. The first came when the government desired to go back of the three-year period not covered by the statute of limitations and show the organization of the Beef Trust, uncover its methods and then show that the same method is still in use, proof that the "restraint of trade" still continued. The packers lost.

The government relied largely on cost experts and statistics to prove their case. They showed that the system of costs used by one concern was adopted at about the same time by all the others. Jerome V. Pratt, a former Armour manager, was the star witness for the government. He knew the methods of the bookkeepers and he knew of the reports sent to the National Packing Company from the various houses. These reports, government witnesses testified, showed the amount of sales and for the week and the prices received. It was from these reports, the government alleged, that the packers, meeting on Tuesday as directors of the National Packing Company in a downtown office building, were able to fix the shipments for the coming week and allot to each concern the amount of sales it could make.

The packers' aggregate wealth is estimated at $100,000,000.

Of the jurors the most pretentious was the president of a merchant tailoring establishment, while a carpenter, whose most intricate problem heretofore has been figuring with the aid of his square and rule, listened to the name of figures and pondered. Farmers, grocers and insurance solicitor and clerks made up the panel.

MILL WORKERS AT NEWTON OUT ON STRIKE TODAY

Two hundred and fifty out of five hundred employes of the Saxony Worsted Company of Newton are on strike today, following refusal to return to work at the noon hour yesterday. The entire plant was shut down today. The mill manufactures a high grade of yarn. Most of the striking hands are women.

SIX MILLS IN LOWELL CLOSE; PUT 16,000 OUT

Foremen Send Help Home as Strike of 3,000 Cripples Big Textile Plants in the Wage Dispute

Six of the big cotton mills of Lowell shut down today and about 16,000 operatives were thrown out of work. This radical action of the mills was the result of a strike begun yesterday.

Of the entire idle force only about 3,500 are strikers. The others were shut out.

William Trautman and Pearl McGill, organizers of the Industrial Workers of the World, were in Lowell today in the interest of their organization. They addressed the strikers at their headquarters and arrangements were made for a big mass meeting this afternoon on the South Lowell Common.

In Lynn, where a strike began yesterday in the shoe factories, the situation today was almost cleared up. Nearly all of the shoe firms gave in to the McKay stitchers, who wanted an increase of 2 cents a dozen on shoes. This afternoon there were only about 300 on strike, of the 2,500 called out yesterday.

Newton Plant Closed.

In Newton, where a strike was declared in the Saxony Worsted Company's factory, the entire plant was shut down. There were about 500 employes, mostly women. Only half of the force struck.

The eyes of the industrial world were focused, however, on Lowell today. The Lawrence Manufacturing Company is the only one of the seven Lowell mills open. E. H. Walker, agent of this mill, said:

"The Lawrence mill is running and it will continue to run all Summer. The employes are perfectly satisfied, and in my opinion will remain so, notwithstanding efforts made to disturb them."

The Lawrence plant is the biggest hosiery factory in the world. They employ about 4,000 persons, most American girls.

Trautman in his speech at the I. W. W. headquarters in Lowell today counselled peace and told the strikers and the shutouts not to do anything that would cause the calling out of the militia.

These are the mills that were closed:

Merrimac Manufacturing Company, 1,800.

Tremont and Suffolk Mills, 2,000.

Massachusetts Mills, 3,000.

Boott Mills, 2,000.

Hamilton Manufacturing Company, 1,500.

Appleton Mill, 1,300.

Foremen Send Help Home.

When the mills opened today the strikers had their pickets about the entrances of the various mills. Many of the operatives were persuaded not to return to work. By 9 o'clock the agents of the six mills that closed saw that their forces had been seriously crippled, and apparently consulting together by telephone they decided to shut down.

Foremen went through the mills where operatives were at work and told them to quit. Many of those in the mills who are out now did not want to quit. They were satisfied with the raise in pay that the mills had granted them.

This raise averaged a little over 7 per cent. The strikers want a straight raise of 15 per cent.

The strikers and the shut-outs formed a parade and marched through the streets. They went to the I. W. W. hall at the corner of Centre and market streets. In a rush to get up the stairway there was a lot of crowding and a squad of police hurried to the spot to straighten things out. There was no real disorder and no arrests.

I. W. W. Men Active.

The I. W. W. has been active in Lowell during the past week and now includes about 4,000 in its organization. They are sorely in need of funds. The A. F. of L. is better organized, and has a well filled treasury.

The agents of the mills are indifferent to the closing down, and declare that owing to the shortage of coal for fuel they would welcome the excuse for shutting off their work for a time.

John C. Wahleigh, president of the Lowell Manufacturers Association, representing all the mill owners, said:

"The weavers are the principal cause of the strike here in Lowell. It is to be

BINGHAM COPPER FILES A PETITION IN BANKRUPTCY

The Bingham Copper Company Corporation, a few years ago an active copper stock on the Boston market, today went into bankruptcy when a voluntary petition was filed by Secretary W. F. Whedon, following a meeting of the stockholders at Norwood.

Bingham copper once sold at 49¾, but dropped steadily the last few years. It went down as far as twenty-five cents a share, on which the directors levied an assessment of $2.50. The company was incorporated under the Wyoming laws with a mine at Bingham, Utah. The liabilities are placed at $18,919.98 and assets $18.49, with further assertion as to assets. The principal creditor is Carl Brandt of No. 15 Zamora street, Jamaica Plain, who holds a claim against the corporation for $18,858.50. The stockholders are not included among the creditors.

FAIL TO STOP SUGAR TRIAL

NEW YORK, March 25.—Judge Hand in the criminal branch of the United States District Court today denied the motions made by the defence in the trial of the directors of the Sugar Trust to instruct the jury to return a verdict of not guilty. The decision is looked on as an initial victory for the prosecution. In refusing to grant the motions Judge Hand contended it has been shown that the defendants were guilty of conspiring in restraint of trade. The defence then began the introduction of testimony.

STOPS YOUR HAIR FALLING OUT AND DISSOLVES DANDRUFF AT ONCE.

Your hair appears soft, lustrous, fluffy and abundant after using a little Danderine.

What causes Dandruff, itchy scalp and falling hair? Who cares—so long as Danderine overcomes this—and it does, and quickly, too—it does more, it grows hair and we can prove it.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or a loose or falling hair, and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting all over the scalp.

A little Danderine now will immediately double the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove to yourself tonight—now—that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

Boston Girl Elopes After Jilting First Love

When One Suitor 'Phoned to Urge Hasty Marriage, Miss Frazer Called Up Newest Swain.

Married to one man while another was waiting for the happy day to be named is the adventure of Nellie Frazer, a Boston girl, who was wedded to J. O. Stevenson, a wealthy widower of Oklahoma City, at Wichita, Kan., according to dispatches from the latter place today.

The marriage followed an elopement by Stevenson with his bride-to-be from Oklahoma City, where G. M. Hackett of Davenport, Ia., to whom the former Miss Frazer was engaged, was waiting to hear whether his supposed fiancee would marry him that day.

Miss Frazer and Hackett have been engaged for some time. Recently the young woman paid a visit to her uncle, Dr. George Morse, in Oklahoma City. Here she met Stevenson, and they were very much in each other's company. Evidently Hackett must have been informed of the little love affair, for he wired Miss Frazer that he would be in Oklahoma City by the first train. When he arrived he called up Miss Frazer and said he wished that they be married the next day.

Miss Frazer called up Stevenson. Although it was early in the morning, Stevenson ordered his car driven to Dr. Morse's house, and the couple caught the first train for Wichita.

$3,000 IS ADDED TO BOSTON OPERA FUND

Nearly $3,000 has been added to the Opera House guarantee fund by new contributions, so the fund is rapidly nearing the $100,000 mark. Meanwhile, subscriptions for seats continue to come in, giving assurance that Boston is determined to put the opera company on a secure basis. Following are the new contributions:

Mrs. C. G. Weld, $2,000; C. E. Cotting, $500; Philip S. Sears, $150; Prescott Bigelow, $50; Dr. and Mrs. Langdon Frothingham, $25; Adolf Leve, $25; Mrs. McAllister, $15; M. C., $5; Miss A. C. W. Gilden, $10; John Mck. Hyde, $10; Mrs. George W. Armstrong, $100; International Alliance Theatrical Stage Employes, $100.

CHALONER FIGHTING FOR $20,000 POLICY

NEW YORK, March 26.—John Armstrong Chaloner, former husband of Amelie Rives, brother of former Lieutenant-Governor Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, has brought suit in the United States District Court to recover $20,000 from the Equitable Life Assurance Society. The amount is that of a paid up life insurance policy, due March 21, this year. The society is perfectly willing to pay, but two demands have been made for the money. One demand was made by Mr. Ware, as legal representative of Mr. Chaloner, and the other by Thomas T. Sherman of Evarts, Choate & Sherman, who was appointed years ago by the Supreme Court as a committee of the estate of Mr. Chaloner, who had been declared insane.

YOUR HAIR

Simple Way to Quickly Restore Natural Color.

It is not difficult to restore youthful color of your hair if you will only use the right method.

There are many dyes and stains recommended for coloring the hair, but a newly discovered preparation, the Queen Gray Hair Restorer, meets all desired needs and has none of the objections of the old-fashioned hair dyes. This is a scientific treatment that can be applied by anyone and will restore the natural color of the hair immediately. Follow the simple directions on the package and any desired shade can be given. This method leaves the hair soft and velvety, gives a lasting color that is not sticky, does not rub off and does not in appearance that no one would suspect that your hair was ever gray or faded. Queen Gray Hair Restorer requires but one application, and as it is easy to use, the best hair dressers rely upon it and recommend it to their patrons. It is in two sizes, 50c and $1.00, and can be obtained from druggists, perfumers and hair dressers. Drug Co. and the leading drug and department stores throughout the country.

20,000 Operatives Affected by Big Strike at Lowell

The Lowell cotton mills, all of which are expected to close down within the week, employ about 20,000 operatives, divided as follows:

Lawrence Manufacturing Company, 4,000.
Merrimac Manufacturing Company, 4,000.
Tremont and Suffolk Mills, 4,000.
Massachusetts Mills, 2,000.
Boott Mills, 2,000.
Hamilton Manufacturing Company, 1,800.
Appleton Mill, 1,300.
All of the mills have closed today except the Lawrence mill.

regretted that this trouble should come at this time.

"The trouble is that the weavers, being cut, have affected the work of the other operatives of the mills. Their work is dependent upon the weavers.

"The action of the mills in shutting down may be correctly interpreted as a retaliation against the methods of the I. W. W."

Weekly Payroll $101,000.

When asked the weekly payrolls of the mills, Mr. Wadleigh replied that they were approximately $101,000. The figures he had received at noon showed there were about 11,650 operatives out.

About 500 operatives, half of which are girls of the Saxony Worsted Mills in Chapel street, Newton, are now on strike, closing the mill up. The strike started yesterday noon when the girls demanded an increase, 99 going on strike. The men on hearing of the girls striking went out with them in sympathy. When the gang who work nights arrived they were told of the strike and they refused to go in, closing the mill.

A delegation of twelve, with George Bolton as spokesman, had a conference with General Agent Frank Hyslop, stating their demands of a 10 per cent increase, which Mr. Hyslop would not recognize, saying that he will could not afford to give that much money, therefore he would close the mills until the strike was settled.

Organizers of the I. W. W. addressed the strikers and will endeavor to organize them.

PAIR END LIVES IN LYNN HOTEL

Thomas Coakley, thirty-nine years old, a shoe cutter, and Mrs. May Chinnery, thirty years old, were found dead today in their room at the Hotel Touraine, No. 18 South Common street, Lynn. The deaths were caused by gas asphyxiation. It is believed there was a suicide compact between the pair.

The gas jet was pulled from the wall. The police found Coakley partially dressed on the floor. The woman was in bed.

Both had been living at the hotel for a year and a half as man and wife. Five weeks ago Coakley reported to the Lynn police his wife was missing. Two weeks ago she returned.

The woman was a widow with a daughter, Anna, seven years old, living in the family of Charles Walker, a Peabody leather manufacturer.

According to hotel employes, Coakley and Mrs. Chinnery entered early in the evening and went immediately to their room on the third floor. They always kept apart from the rest of the guests. Nothing more was heard from them until about 7 o'clock in the morning, when Mary Gifford, who has a room on the second floor directly beneath the one occupied by the couple, heard a fall and groans. She told the police she thought nothing of it, as quarrels had taken place in the room before.

Emil W. Stevens and Annie Rowen smelled gas at Coakley's door in the morning and burst it in. Medical Examiner Joseph Pinkham was called.

The police believe Coakley tried to commit suicide by hanging himself to the gas jet by means of a towel, for one was tied to the pipe.

The woman was a sister of Patrolman Bagley of the Salem police force, and went to Lynn from Peabody, where she formerly lived. Coakley came East from Xenia, O., where his father, James Coakley, is said to be dying. To his shopmates he had said recently he was going West soon, and the police think the parting may have had a bearing on the double tragedy.

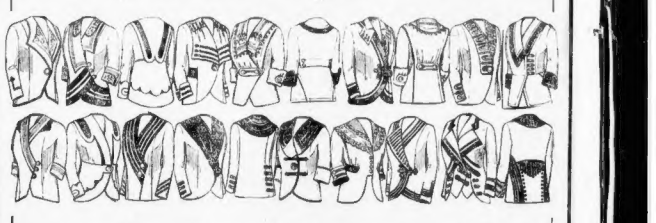
ANNUAL SPRING SALE OF Women's and Misses' Suits

Newly Arrived Stocks of the Season's Best Suit Styles Two Weeks Before Easter at Prices Generally Not Known Before Midsummer

Strictly Tailored Suits with All the Fit & Character of Made-to-Order Garments

WHATEVER MATERIALS OR COLOR YOU HAVE SEEN, HEARD OR READ ABOUT THIS SEASON THAT IS ADAPTABLE TO THE PLAIN TAILORED GARMENTS HERE AWAITS YOU. The exacting workmanship of the highclass tailor is apparent in shoulder, sleeve, bust and hip lines, in linings, buttonholes, collar, etc., as well as in the shapeliness and grace of the varied skirt models.

Highest Cost Imported Model Suits Reproduced at Popular Prices



The twenty different models in spring suit coats, here illustrated, give but a faint idea of the many new fancy models we have prepared for this sale. These are but a few of the many distinctive cutaways, new collar styles, new braidings, revers, etc., etc. Unlike similar collections shown in style magazines, these did not originate in the mind of an artist, but were sketched from the actual garments right in our suit department. A forceful suggestion of what we have accomplished in reproducing suits that in the original would sell for two or three times our price for these beautiful reproductions.

At 12.50—$17.50 Suits—This very low-priced lot includes smart mixtures and trimmed serges. Sergos trimmed with Hercules braid on coat and skirt; mixtures in new three-button cutaway. Colors—black, gray and tan. Sizes 34-44 ..... 12.50

At 15.50—$25.00 Suits—Beautifully trimmed garments, perfectly shaped, handsome ornaments. Sergos plain tailored suits with cutaways and four-button coats. The colors include navies, grays, copenhagen and black. Sizes 34-44 ..... 15.50

At 19.50—$29.50 Suits—These include changeable taffetas, two-toned whipcords, diagonals, mixtures and serges. The newest designs are found in this lot, including all the new cutaways, new trimmings and four-button coats. New envelope and draped skirts. Every new spring shade. Sizes 34-44 ..... 19.50

At 22.50—$32.50 Suits—Reproduction of one of our $55.00 models—made of finest whipcords and diagonals, coat bound all around with half-inch tailored braid, back of coat trimmed with buttons in the one-sided effect. Skirt trimmed to match coats, in navy, tan and black 22.50

At 25.00—No less than 87 new models at this popular price. Finest of whipcords, diagonals, mixtures, serges, in practically all the best models of the spring and summer seasons, all specially prepared for this annual event. 25.00

We specialize in suits for short-waisted, stout figures, the figure that is short-waisted without the large hip measure, etc. These garments are made for us especially and are all custom tailored in plain and semi-tailored suits. Bust measures are 35 to 51.

Our Exclusive Garment Guarantee on Every Suit, no matter what the price, covers materials, colors, linings, findings and workmanship

BOSTON FAVORS HEALTH MARRIAGE

WHAT DEAN SUMNER SAYS ON MARRYING UNHEALTHY PERSONS

"After consultation with Rt. Rev. C. P. Anderson, Bishop of Chicago, and with his approval, Dean Sumner and his co-workers of the Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul have agreed upon an advanced policy with regard to the administration of marriage in the Cathedral.

"Beginning with Easter, no persons will be married at the Cathedral unless they present a certificate of health from a reputable physician to the effect that they are normal physically and mentally and have neither an incurable nor communicable disease.

"This step is taken only after months of study of the situation and deliberation as to its advisability. It is believed that this stand will meet with the immediate sympathy of the clergy in the church at large, all of whom have long felt the undesirability of being party to the marriage of persons who, because of their physical condition, should never be allowed to enter into the marriage state."—Statement by the Very Rev. Walter Taylor Sumner, dean of the Episcopal Cathedral of St. Peter and Paul of Chicago.

Clergymen Declare That There Should Be a Curb on Those Physically Unfit.

Boston clergymen generally approve the view of Dean Sumner and the Episcopal church authorities of Chicago in opposition to the marriage of diseased persons, but they are divided more or less as to the advisability of the church taking the initiative in the matter. That the State should enact more rigid laws governing marriage is a common opinion expressed.

CHICAGO, March 26.—Bishop Samuel Fallows of the Reformed Episcopal Church

Mrs. Susan W. FitzGerald, of the Massachusetts Suffrage League, who says new marriage law is needed.

gives his support to the movement launched by the Rt. Rev. C. P. Anderson, Episcopal Bishop of Chicago, to refuse to marry anyone who could not produce a "clean bill of health" from a reputable physician. The movement was headed by Dean Sumner of the Cathedral and approved by the Bishop, Rev. Mr. Fallows said:

I am one of the directors of the Juvenile Frances Association, and for this reason I am naturally in favor of Dean Sumner's plan. In our association we care for the children who have been born with diseases. There are many more such cases than one would imagine possible, and this means that there is a great need for some step in the direction of purifying the marriage ceremony. But I believe that Dean Sumner is ahead of his time. I hardly think the church is yet ready to take up a move of this sort, but there certainly is a need for some sort of legislation on the subject of eugenics, and it is my belief that the action of the Cathedral ministers will go far toward attracting attention to this need. Rev. James S. Stone of St. James' Episcopal Church thinks that the matter should be left entirely to the State.

Rev. Fr. Dennis O'Callaghan, head of the Paulist Fathers in Chicago, refuses to discuss the subject of eugenics, and it is my belief that the action of the Cathedral ministers will go far toward attracting attention to this need. Rev. James S. Stone of St. James' Episcopal Church thinks that the matter should be left entirely to the State.

Rev. Fr. Rev. James S. Stone of St. James' Episcopal Church thinks that the matter should be left entirely to the State.

Some Ministers Believe in Legislation by State, Along Lines of Dean Sumner's Ideas.

But let the movement come from the physicians and the co-operation come from other professions.

Clergy Can Use Judgment.

By Rev. A. Z. Conrad, D. D., pastor of the Park Street Church.

In all probability there should be legislation regarding such restrictions in marriage. No doubt Bishop Anderson of Chicago has been moved for good and sufficient reasons to make this stand in his cathedral, but we must remember that no clergyman is compelled to marry persons who come to him to have this rite performed. He has the privilege of accepting or rejecting them.

In view of the revelations made by the physicians, I would say that every father would be justified in requiring a health certificate from the young man who contemplates marriage with his daughter.

In Line With Modern Tendencies.

By Susan W. FitzGerald of the Massachusetts Suffrage League.

There isn't any doubt that this is a step in line with modern tendencies. It is my understanding that laws along the lines of requiring the attainment of a certain physical standard for marriage have been passed in New Jersey, and I believe in a Western State also.

I am not sufficiently in touch with conditions in Chicago to know what effect such a step as this is apt to have. It appears certain that the church, in taking a hand in the fight, will help along tremendously in securing this reform.

And such a law is certainly needed.

Obligation Not on Clergy.

By the Rev. William Harman van Allen, rector of the Church of the Advent:

For years I have advocated some such requirement. It should be a preliminary to the issuance of a license. But the obligation does not seem to me to rest upon the clergy. There are particular conditions in Chicago which certainly justify the action there. The cathedral is in the heart of the slums of the city. The ideal would be to have it applied to all and the rule—no licences until such certificates had been presented in all cases. Also it is unquestionably true that one of the commonest causes for considered causes of divorce is the presence of communicable diseases.

See Some Exceptions.

By the Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester, prominent in Emmanuel Movement:

I thoroughly believe in the position of the cathedral so far as communicable disease is concerned. But I would not be absolute in my approval of the limitation in case of those afflicted with incurable disease. Under some circumstances, very unusual to be sure, I might marry parties if one had an incurable disease, but I have a strong reason, as the desire to leave money to the other.

Favors State Action.

By the Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham, of the Arlington Street Church:

My feeling is that this will come eventually, but that it ought to be done by the State. Certainly society should not go on multiplying the unfit as is now being done. But the State should insist, before issuing a permit for a marriage, that all contracting parties shall be sound. As things are now, too much responsibility is thrown on the individual, and I am not sure that it would be wise for the city to issue a license and then for the church to refuse to do what the city authorizes.

It is a great social, civic matter, and for the good of all, oftentimes the church may take the lead in such matters and it is to be hoped that this stand by the Chicago cathedral will arouse public opinion upon this great problem.

A SHARP WARNING

Nervous exhaustion, or breakdown of the nerves, is more often a blessing than anything else. The nerves have rebelled and you should be thankful it is no much than it is. Let it serve as a sharp warning to relieve the strain and so take a treatment that will build up your nerves.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a real nerve tonic. They supply plenty of nourishing red blood to the exhausted nerves and do not excite and tire them on to further work which they have already shown they cannot do. Medicines which whip on the tired nerves do more harm than no medicine at all. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People not only start in immediately to give relief but continue to strengthen the nerves until they are able to do their work once more.

Mrs. H. C. Williams, of No. 112 North Franklin street, Saginaw, Mich., says: "Nervousness in my case was doubtless due to worry and overwork. I nearly lost all control, weak, restless and nervous. Nervous spells came on me whenever I had any extra strain. There were no additional symptoms in my case but as I was conducting my store all alone and there was considerable detail connected with it, it is not to be wondered at that I was nervous. An old lady friend, who had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People with good results in her family, told me to try them for nervousness. I did so. My nerves became steadier and I was cured. I can recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People as a splendid nerve tonic. I have used them for years whenever run down and found they gave me immediate relief."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are guaranteed to be free from any harmful or habit-forming drugs. They have given the most gratifying results in nervous headaches, neuralgia, nervous dyspepsia, St. Vitus' dance, and even in partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia. For a full statement of this treatment write for the free booklet, "Disease of the Nervous System."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

BOSTON VIEWS ON HEALTH DEMANDS IN MARRIAGE LAW

By Professor T. N. Carver of Harvard University, who is a strong advocate of social service:

"This whole subject about what ones are physically fit to marry and what ones are not belongs to the biologists. Let them study the subject with all due care going into it from several avenues of approach, and after they have deliberated, why then let them call the ministers together and give out their scientific material on this important question.

"To have an individual start this reform in one city will not accomplish much good except in a very circumscribed fluit.

Let the biologists tell us what to do. Let them get together and give us their ultimatum. Then let others do the rest."

Medical Fraternity Awakening.

By Rev. Edward Cummings, D.D., pastor of the South Congregational Church (Unitarian).

Undoubtedly this whole question is one that the medical fraternity is awakening to consider. They are feeling their enormous power and responsibility and influence and I have hopes that within a few years their biological training will give us facts and statistics which will do well to ponder. While ministers may do their part in bringing out the necessity of studying this important subject of "Eugenics," I do believe that the initiative in reform measures of this type should come from the best physicians. Plato in his "Ideal Republic," as well as Sir Thomas More in his "Utopia," warns us about the abnormal in life and that we are constantly reminded by the family named John Pooppottamy in species and naming the State of New York nearly a million of dollars. The best thing that we can do is to advocate the survival of the fittest in this respect.

EDESON IN ROLE OF A VILLAIN

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

It will be a dreadful shock to the matinee girl—this "The Indiscretion of Truth," which brought Robert Edeson to the Hollis last evening. It was hard to believe, but the fact was right there before your very eyes—Bob Edeson was a fallen idol. The strong right arm that you could always depend upon to protect the pretty heroine from danger was doing villainous work, and the victims were lovely women. Such is the penalty of art when an "acting" part beckons to a man with dramatic ambition.

It was not easy to accept Mr. Edeson as a regular villain, but he managed to do very well at it last evening. But you almost felt that he was joking when he threatened to strangle his innocent victim. The bad manners and worse morals that Mr. Edeson exhibited through three acts appeared strangely out of place in a man who for years had waded knee deep in the sunny romance of the stage. But he was the bad boy of the play, and didn't give the slightest indication of reforming. So it is just as well that he died in the third act, which is another point for comment. Stars who die generally put off the event until the end of the play.

Just an Acting Part.

Mr. Edeson's success in "The Indiscretion of Truth" depends principally upon his ability to live down his reputation for heroics. He certainly excited no sympathy as Bruce Darrell in the J. Hartley Manners play. As a matter of fact Darrell is simply an acting part that gives Mr. Edeson unusual and, of course, unpleasant work to do. Naturally he made the most of his opportunities, for Darrell was a sturdy athlete, with trophies pinned all over his bulging chest. His moral development was several points shy, however.

Mr. Manners, the author, found his material for the play in the wretched marriage laws of Scotland, through which Truth Coleridge innocently become entangled with Darrell. Circumstances that were repeatedly explained to the audience made Miss Coleridge first the wife of Darrell and then the wife of a young man already engaged to another young woman. The big role in the play was not that of Darrell, but Sir George Stirling, a nice middle-aged gentleman who attempted to straighten out the mixed affair. As played by Frank Copper, an English actor just arrived, Sir George was something of a happy Mr. Fix-it. He was too good to be true, but that counted for little, for you were bound to figure it out that Edeson himself was too bad to be real. Here you had plenty of contrast.

Truth is Rescued.

Just how far the terrible wickedness of Darrell could have dragged the play if the timely rupture of his heart had not killed him is not easy to determine, but the author thoughtfully removed the young man in time to save Truth for the simple-minded Sir George. Mr. Cooper's acting of Sir George made an agreeable impression upon his audience. His performance was well defined and finished.

Mr. Edeson will doubtless find it difficult to add to his popularity through "The Indiscretion of Truth." His role is an ugly characterization that makes no more serious demand upon the actor than be plainly disagreeable and coarse. His death is the happiest thing he contributes to the story.

But what of the temperamental matinee girl who loved her "Strongheart" and "Soldiers of Fortune"? Bob Edeson has sent her home in tears. It's a fearful responsibility he has bestowed upon himself.

Attractions of Many Theatres

GLOBE—"Aletheia," in mind reading tests that bewilder and mystify the audience, heading the vaudeville bill, followed by the Hon Airs, reckless comedy acrobats; Lillian Murtha, in German songs and stories, and other novelties, including motion pictures.

GAIETY—Ben Welch's sprightly burlesquers, made up principally of Welch and his comedians in songs, dances and ludicrous situations. Nimble dancers and several vaudeville features contribute to make the entertainment agreeable.

NATIONAL—Jesse Lasky's elaborate vaudeville feature, "Visions D'Art," with Fleurette as the centrepiece. An unusually attractive novelty. Gracie Emmett and company, in "Mrs. Murphy's Second Husband," is another lively number on the long bill.

PREMIER—Extensive program of motion pictures, headed by "Zigomar," a sensational film subject, scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday only. "Zigomar" is a detective story of many thrilling episodes, and one of the best subjects of the year.

ORPHEUM—Vaudeville and moving pictures. The headline feature for the week is "The Operator," a dramatic sketch of more than ordinary quality. For comedy, "The Three of Us" and other acts were presented.

BOSTON—"The Littlest Rebel," with Dustin and William Farnum in soldier boy roles. Stirring melodrama of the Civil War, well supplied with carnage.

PARK—"The Country Boy," showing the weaknesses of impetuous youth when turned loose on the Great White Way.

MAJESTIC—Sam Bernard in "He Came From Milwaukee." A musical play with a big chorus of pretty girls and a large measure of mangled English by Mr. Bernard.

TREMONT—"Gypsy Love," with Marguerita Sylva as its star. Light opera of the better kind.

HUB—Vaudeville and moving pictures, with the Webb trio of acrobats as the headline feature.

SCENIC TEMPLE—Vaudeville and motion pictures. Lenna Howe's orchestra featured.

AUSTIN & STONES—Baby Jim and other heavyweights featured in the Curio Hall, with musical entertainment in the theatre.

HOWARD—"The Bohemian Girls," with a sprinkling of vaudeville to make the show continuous. Girls are conspicuous in the show.

CASINO—Waldron's Trocadero burlesquers. Musical show.

"BLINDFOLDED" AT CASTLE SQ.

The third play new to the stage presented at the Castle Square for the first time in any theatre, was as enthusiastically received last night as the other two, "Blindfolded" is a play in three acts by Maud Tarleton Winchester. It deals with a bachelor millionaire, temporarily blind from overworking his eyes. The part is acted admirably by John Craig. Mary Young has the part of an heiress whose uncle brings her and the millionaire, Robert Dunham, together. The result, after three acts of humorous situations, is a happy ending with Mr. Craig and Miss Young in the centre of the stage and very close together. George Hassell's impersonation of the butler is a rare piece of humorous delineation. He never came on the stage without "getting his laugh."

"TRAGEDY OF NAN" AT THE PLYMOUTH

At the Plymouth Theatre yesterday afternoon, "The Tragedy of Nan," a three-act play, was presented by Miss A. E. F. Horniman's players from Manchester, England. After the second act Miss Horniman said a few words in response to many calls.

EVA TANGUAY AT B. F. KEITH'S

Eva Tanguay dominates the bill at Keith's this week, good as it is. She has "p-p-s-o-n-a-l-i-t-y," as she says in her song, and she is certainly busy every minute she is on the stage. This startling Miss Tanguay is giving the best act she has ever given at Keith's, and she shows one thing—that if her audiences would let her stand still for a minute and sing something quietly they would find the same excitable young woman really has talent and can sing and entertain like the other vaudeville folks. She gives a recitation, "Clams," that is very bright and clever, and her "Money" song "goes big." But audiences want, as she says, "their busy little Eva," and so she sings the "Tanguay Rag" and "Here Is Where I Go Crazy." For an encore, there's the good old song which ends:

Folks say I am crazy
I don't care.
Folks say I'm busy
It gets me the money
So I don't care.

Miss Tanguay, as usual, won many encores and recalls and bowed herself jauntily in and out, at last saying Good bye, with "God-love-you, kind folks."

The bill was opened by the Zoyarras, with an interesting equilibristic act. The Berrons, in their musical turn, were capital, the piano was played admirably by one of them. Gordon and Marx were amusing as German comedians. They make one of the best teams seen here this season. Gladys Clark and Henry Bergman, young comedians, presenting a baseball skit, and Bedini and Arthur, assisted by Eddie Cantor, comedy jugglers, furnished their share of the entertainment. The double dancing work of the Carbrey brothers and aerial trapeze feats of Jordan and Zeno, closed a varied and amusing vaudeville show.

Oh, How I Itched!

What long nerve-racking days of constant torture—what sleepless nights of terrible agony—itch—itch—itch, constant itch, until it seemed that I must tear off my very skin—then.

Instant relief—my skin cooled, soothed and healed!

The very first drops of D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema stopped that awful itch instantly; yes, the very moment D.D.D. touched the burning skin the torture ceased. A 25c bottle proves it.

D.D.D. has been known for years as the only absolutely reliable eczema remedy, for it washes away the disease germs and leaves the skin as clear and healthy as that of a child.

All other druggists have D.D.D. Prescription—go to them if you can't come to us—but don't accept some big profit substitute.

But if you come to our store, we are so certain of what D.D.D. will do for you that we offer you a full size bottle on this guarantee—If you do not find that it takes away the itch AT ONCE, it costs you not a cent. All Riker-Jaynes Drug Stores in New England, Houghton & Dutton Drug Dept.

PLAYS BOSTON WILL SEE SOON

The Colonial Theatre, which was dark last night, will reopen this evening with Donald Brian in "The Siren." The company includes, besides Mr. Brian, Julia Sanderson, Ethel Cadman, Frank Moulan, Will West and Alan Mudie.

* * *

The first performance here of James T. Powers' new musical play, "Two Little Brides," will be given at the Shubert this evening. In this piece Mr. Powers appears as actor and author. Gustav Kerker is responsible for the music.

* * *

"The Girl from Montmartre," a farce with music, with Hattie Williams as the star, will move into the Park Theatre on April 15, following the engagement of "The Country Boy."

* * *

Miss Billie Burke will be the next star to come to the Hollis, arriving on Monday, April 8, in "The Runaway."

* * *

"Sumurun," a wordless play that was counted as one of the season's hits in New York, will come to the Shubert following the engagement of "Two Little Brides."

"The Prince and the Pauper" is announced as Mr. Craig's offering at the Castle Square Theatre next week.

Gertrude Elliott in a New Play

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

It is asking a good deal to expect us to believe that Mr. Pinero is at his best when writing comedy. "Preserving Mr. Panmure," which began the week at the Plymouth last evening, while not entirely free from amusing moments, was sufficiently unlike Mr. Pinero in most particulars to lead you to the conclusion that his aim is surest in serious plays.

"Preserving Mr. Panmure," which put grave importance upon trivial matters, began as a comedy, but quickly settled down to the broadest kind of farce that gave suitable reward to only Miss Gertrude Elliott and Mr. Ernest Stallard. Miss Elliott, who can always be depended upon to take care of herself, drew more than her share of comfort from a flimsy role. It was another case of an actress with personality and force making the best of a doubtful bargain. In a more charitable view of it, Josepha Quarendon was not the kind of character to yield much in the matter of inspiration to a woman of Miss Elliott's ability. That she succeeded in making Josepha more or less human, and deliciously amusing, is more to the credit of the actress than to Mr. Pinero's creative ability.

Kiss Starts the Trouble.

Mr. Stallard, whose characterization of Panmure was cleverly done—which means that he did not yield to the temptation to run to excesses—gave the play its biggest value. He held himself to strict quality at moments when his companions in the play ran wildly into farce. Mr. Stallard's performance was one of the bright spots of the evening.

"Preserving Mr. Panmure" ran into late hours, and occupied a good deal of time for so simple an indiscretion as a misdirected kiss upon the lips of a pretty governess. You would never have suspected Mr. Panmure of such behavior. Neither would you suspect that any woman, even the virtuous Josepha, could make such a fuss about it after she had faithfully promised not to tell Mrs. Panmure. Naturally, Mr. Panmure was in despair and promised to be good in the future.

But we had overlooked Mrs. Panmure's aunt, a superior woman, who wrung the terrible truth from Josepha; that is, all of it except the name of the man who recognized a good spot to kiss when he saw it—and used it.

With suspicion fairly placed upon the four masculine guests at Panmure's home, you were plunged into the depths of Mr. Pinero's idea of comedy. With the exception of Panmure and Josepha, the characters failed to live up to Pinero's reputation, their work for the most part was commonplace and uninteresting.

But there were situations that caught the audience squarely on its funny bone, and in every instance it was either Miss Elliott or Mr. Stallard who held the scenes together, with the latter reaching the highest score.

Pinero's Skill Seen.

While "Preserving Mr. Panmure" cannot be counted as more than a play of ordinary dramatic values, Pinero's skill at construction was plainly evident. His characters for the most part were uninteresting, but they moved in well defined paths that kept them in place, even if they added but little to the evening's entertainment. There were no moments during the performance when you felt encouraged to be more than mildly amused, but Mr. Stallard's delightful sense of refined humor kept you on good terms with yourself—and the play. "Preserving Mr. Panmure" was not hilarious—it was rather of the type of entertainment that you might safely expect would be indorsed by the Drama League as eminently proper for its discriminating members.

FRENCH MELODRAMA AT THE MAJESTIC

A French melodrama, "Les Freres Ennemis," by Erkmann and Chatrian, was the special matinee attraction at the Majestic Theatre yesterday. It was presented by Paul Marcel and a company of French players. The play deals with the wrangling of two brothers over bequests left them in their father's will. They have not spoken to each other for thirty years. The efforts of both their wives to reconcile them have failed. Peace is not established until the son of one falls in love with the daughter of the other. Mr. Marcel, as one brother, and Maud Quesnon as his daughter, gave excellent impersonations. During the intermission an extract from "Chantecler" was read by Mr. Marcel. The performances will be repeated, at to-day's, Wednesday's and Friday's matinees.

POLICE SEEK TWO MANIACS

The police of Boston and the neighboring cities have been notified to watch for Charles F. Crawford, fifty years of age, and George A. Copple, twenty years of age, who have escaped from the Worcester Insane Asylum.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS. Your druggist will refund money if Pazo Ointment fails to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

POPE IS PLEASED AT GENEROSITY OF CARDINAL O'CONNELL

ROME, March 26.—The Pope is very much pleased over the announcement that Cardinal O'Connell of Boston has offered to pay from his private funds, in installments every three months, for the drainage of the Church of San Clemente, of which he is titular.

When notified, the Pope exclaimed: "Nothing surprises me that comes from the good heart of Cardinal O'Connell."

The rector of the Church of San Clemente, Father Mooney, an Irish Dominican, has gone to Ireland, following a stroke of apoplexy. The news of Cardinal O'Connell's decision, when sent to him there, gave him great consolation.

The committee having the work of drainage in charge includes British Ambassador Rennell Rodd. It will soon meet to decide plans for the work, which it is expected will take a year.

NEWPORT WAITS PRINCESS "PAT"

NEWPORT, R. I., March 26.—Friends of Princess Patricia, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, are eagerly awaiting her visit here this Summer.

The Duke of Connaught many years ago displayed interest in Newport and has always intended to make it a visit. Princess Patricia is also enthusiastic regarding the trip, and already invitations for several luncheons and other affairs have been received by her, as her friends knew some time ago that she was to come here.

THREE BROTHERS DIE WITHIN TEN DAYS AT CANAAN

CANAAN, N. H., March 26. The double funeral today of George and Charles Davis recalled the death, within ten days, of three brothers, Alfred, George and Charles Davis, aged eighty-three, seventy-eight and eighty-eight respectively.

Alfred and George were engaged in business here up to the time of their deaths, while Charles retired from active business pursuits only a short time ago.

The funeral today was largely attended and the floral tributes from the organizations of which the brothers had been affiliated were profuse.

REPORT MORSE IS NEAR DEATH

LONDON, March 26.—An exclusive dispatch from Florence states that Charles W. Morse is at the point of death in a hospital there.

The former American financier, released from prison by order of President Taft, because of grave illness, was being rushed from Rome to Paris for special treatment, when his condition became so grave that he was taken off the train at Florence.

WIFE CONFIDENT THAT SCOTT HAS ATTAINED POLE

LONDON, March 26.—The wife of Captain Robert F. Scott is confident that her husband has attained the South Pole and will return with invaluable scientific data. Serene in her confidence, Mrs. Scott is exalted no more by hopeful reports about her husband than she is depressed by gloomy rumors. When the false report came from Washington, New Zealand that Amundsen, Scott's Norwegian rival, had reported that Scott had beaten him to the quest, Mrs. Scott said calmly:

"We must await much more authentic information."

In a word, she knew that Scott would let her know first that he had been successful.

RED LETTER DAY Boys' Store

The last Wednesday in March will be made of special importance for the boys and the parents, because Easter is so near at hand.

Every mother wants the boy to appear at his best as Spring approaches. Red Letter Day offers the opportunity. At the top of the list we find the

110 SUITS $3

With extra trousers

For the larger boys, 7 to 17 years. There are plenty of Norfolks among them. We doubt if their equal can be found at half the $4.50 price more, but as the style of fabric cannot be duplicated they have to go.

At the Same Price—

LONG PANT SUITS

There are scores of long trousers suits for the youths 15 to 19 years, just one and two of a pattern. Please consider this carefully —$4.50 values. Even $7.50 was a low price originally. And again at the same price, $3.00, long pants made of cassets, cheviots in a varied assortment of fabrics, and every one a rain coat; think the price, $3.00.

Knickerbockers, 29c

Cut from our odd knickerbockers, price 29c Wednesday. The cloths originally was half a dollar. Hardly necessary to add another word. Not in this section yet will find a little group of

39 Reefers, Priced $1.00

Shepherd plaids chiefly, sizes 7 and 8 years only, so if your boy is 6 or 9 years old you will get a wonderful return for your investment of $1.00.

Boys' Hats, 33c

And that means almost any kind of a spring hat you may have in mind—33c on Red Letter Day. The original cost of these hats $1.00 is the majority.

We want you to get acquainted with this new boys' store of ours, yes, and we want you to talk about it, and you will if you will come here on Red Letter Day or any other day. Then there is another saving.

Hats and Caps at 11c

This will probably make a wrong impression on you, but we have explained our reason. We want you to get such bargains in our boys' store as you have never seen or heard of heretofore. Several hundred hats, none worth less than 25c, majority 50c and minority $1.00. Wednesday 11c.

Boys' Neckwear, 11c

Just in from a large purchase. Beautiful ripples in every shade, stylish four-in-hands. 11c.

Silk Knitted Four-in-Hands in a variation of small and fancy colorings, marked for Wednesday 11c each.

TAFT SENDS COTTON MESSAGE

President Recommends Reduction in the Duties Now Imposed.

forming the bulk of the production of the domestic industry, the foreign cost of turning cotton into yarn is shown to be about 70 per cent of the domestic cost. The duty on these yarns is two on three times in excess of the differences in cost of production.

On some highly specialized yarns, and on yarns of the highest count—that is, of greatest fineness—the duty in some cases about equalizes the difference in conversion cost. In many cases, however, on the higher grades of yarn which are produced in this country the duty is in excess of the difference in the cost of production though to a much less amount than in the case of ordinary warp and filling yarns.

The difference in the cost of weaving yarn into cloth as between this country and its chief competitor varies according to the character of the fabric. In the case of many cloths of plain weave the American cost of weaving is found to be lower than the foreign cost, due to the greater number of looms tended per weaver in this country. This reduces the labor cost per yard despite the higher earnings of the American weaver.

Where Cost Increases.

This conclusion is further substantiated by the fact that cloths of this description are sold by the domestic manufacturers in this country at prices as low as charged by the foreign manufacturer in his own country. In proportion, however, as the fabrics become more complicated (and therefore require of fewer looms per weaver) the American cost of production increases.

In the case of most fancy fabrics of complicated weaving, the cost of weaving is higher in this country, but of such fabrics the present duties are in excess of any difference in cost and in many cases are in excess of the total conversion cost in this country.

The cost of finishing, that is, bleaching, printing, dyeing, and mercerizing) is about the same in this country and in the leading competing country. The extra duties imposed under the present law by reason of these processes are in excess of the difference in the extra cost due to finishing and are often in excess of the total domestic cost of finishing.

The report further shows that in the case of a large variety of fabrics which permit of the use of many looms per weaver, the prices at which goods are sold by the American manufacturer are as low as the prices charged by the foreign manufacturer in his own market and in many cases lower.

System of Distribution.

On the finer goods mill prices in this country are higher than abroad, due, in part at least, to the higher cost of production here. In fine cases, however, is the cost price to the consumer increased by anything like the full amount of the duty. On the other hand, the prices paid by consumers in this country are higher than abroad even where the prices received by the manufacturers are the same in both countries.

This is the result of a system of distribution under which the margin between the manufacturer's price and the retail price is much greater than abroad. This is partly due both to the higher cost of distribution and to the established price in the cotton retail trade of selling fabrics at customary fixed or "set" prices.

Under the existing system of distribution a slight reduction of duties would in some cases materially reduce the price to the consumer, while in other cases a large reduction of the duties would not change the price to the American consumer at all.

These matters are set forth fully in the report of the Board which presents in an impartial manner the necessary facts on which an intelligent revision of this schedule can be based.

I, therefore, recommend that the Congress proceed to such a revision without delay.

Before closing this message, I desire to bring the attention of Congress to the fact that the labor and expense involved in the reports to the tariff commission upon schedule K (wool and manufactures of) and upon schedule I (cotton manufactures) became unduly burdensome under the appropriation. The pressure under which these investigations and reports were made involved a greater outlay than will be necessary in the investigation and report upon the remaining schedules in the tariff law. Heretofore the expenditure has averaged about $30,000 per month since the appropriation became available, July 1, 1911. The board through its chairman, Mr. Emery, advises me that $20,000 per month, in addition to the sum on hand, would enable them to continue regular work upon other schedules directed by me until the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1912.

Asks $60,000 Appropriation.

I, therefore, urge the appropriation as a deficiency appropriation of $60,000 to enable the board to continue its valuable work during the months of April, May and June.

I cannot emphasize too much the importance and I attribute to the work of the board. The reports already made by the board are most valuable in advising the Congress and the people of the actual conditions under which these schedules operate, and of the changes that ought to be made to make more equitable their effect.

I have directed the board to take up the metal schedule, the leather schedule, the chemical schedule and the sugar schedule, and I sincerely hope that appropriations, not only for the current fiscal year, but ample appropriations for the next year will be made by Congress in order that this Congress in the next session and its successors may have the benefit of the information which will certainly reach from a consideration of the services of the tariff board.

England Leads in Cotton.

The tariff board in its report states that in order that its findings should be representative it investigated eighty-one mills in the United States, covering 5,210,836 spindles. Besides these, 17 mills in the underwear and hosiery industry were also investigated. The tariff investigation extended to England, France, Germany, Canada and Japan.

The report points out that England is by far the greatest producer of cotton goods among foreign nations and the greatest competitor of this country. That country sends us over three-fourths of the cotton fabrics imported and nearly seven-eighths of the yarns and threads.

In view of this fact and because of the time limit set for the investigation and necessity of carrying on investigations at the same time, most of the foreign comparisons are based upon the English.

In the case of hosiery, cotton was taken as the leading competitor and comparison is presented of cuttle costs and prices of men's and women's hosiery in this country and Germany. The investigators did not have the time nor money, it was said, to go into the cost of manufacture of many special articles, such as tapestries, bed spreads, table cloths, etc.

An interesting feature of the investigation related to the machinery used. A very small part of the cotton machinery in use in this country is imported, the bulk of it being manufactured here.

As to the cost of water rate, the report says that there is practically no advantage possessed either by the United States or England. Any general difference in the price between England and this country is less than ours, from mill to mill or month to month, in either country.

The actual hours worked, the report states, for English mills and American mills show that in comparing the most efficient mill for which we have figures in England with the most efficient mill for which we have figures in this country—and these mills are typical in both cases—the per cent. of the total English cost of labor to the total American labor cost per pound of yarn varies from 78 to 95 per cent.

Comparing all the yarn selected, the English labor cost is found on the average to be practically seven-eighths of American in the case of these two mills.

Expenses Compared.

In the matter of general expense the difference between the two countries is decidedly greater, thereby increasing the difference in the total conversion cost or rate. Again, in comparing the two most efficient mills as covered by the report, it is found that the total conversion cost of yarn in England varied from 65 to 79 per cent. of the American conversion cost. In saying that the cost of manufacturing yarn in all English mills is 72 per cent. of the cost in an American mill it is considered that the cost of weaving English yarn, including the value of the cotton in it, is 72 per cent. of the total cost of the American yarn. As a matter of fact the difference in conversion cost between the two countries varies from 2.8 per cent. to 11.9 per cent. of the value of production in England, including raw material.

Comparative Figures.

A comparison of the cost of production in the two countries, for 1911, shows that in the case of ordinary warp and filling yarns the present duty is in excess of the cost of conversion. The second set of yarn-cost figures shows like the first, that in the case of low cost yarns the duty is largely in excess of the difference in the conversion cost between the two countries. Comparing the figures shown by the report with the figures shown in the general ratio of the manufacturing cost in favor of the English mills country, it appears that on such yarns the duty is regularly in excess of the difference in the cost of conversion. A different situation exists relative to high grade yarns, the ratio of the duty to the American cost of conversion being decidedly less.

Figures are presented in the report showing that although labor costs in the cotton industry are in many cases lower in the United States than in England, yet the actual hourly earnings in the country are in most of the principal occupations much greater.

Many standard fabrics, the report adds, are sold by American manufacturers at prices as low or lower than those of English manufacturers. On the other hand the fabrics manufactured in England are sold much cheaper than like fabrics made in this country.

The report is highly technical and goes at great length into the details of the relation of tariffs to costs of importation of raw materials, conversion, finishing, labor cost and final prices.

1,000 KILLED IN MEXICAN FIGHT

MEXICO CITY, March 26.—The advance of the victorious rebel army under General Orozco on Mexico City from Jiminez, where 1,000 men were killed in one of the bloodiest battles of the uprising, has been checked by rurales, according to a dispatch received by the War Department this morning.

The retreating Federals rallied after their commander, General Gonzales Salas, had committed suicide when he saw the battle going against him. Being reinforced by rurales, the soldiers turned on their pursuers, selected a hill for their last stand and poured in their fire from the shelter of a natural breastwork.

MALDEN FIREMAN PUBLICLY CENSURED

Public censure was given Hoseman George F. Clapp of the Malden Fire department by Fire Commissioner Charles F. Nutter, on charges of insubordination preferred by Lieutenant S. H. Bailey, after a hearing before the commissioner. The charge was made following the refusal of the hoseman to wash windows in the firehouse upon command of his superior. Clapp claiming that he was asked to do the work after 11 a. m., while the rules provide that such work be done before that hour. Clapp is one of the oldest men in the department and has had a satisfactory record.

Allen Outlaws Playing Hide and Seek May Delay the Final Mountain Battle

Indictments for Complicity in the Court House Assassination Are Expected

HILLSVILLE, Va., March 26.—"They can keep us guessing; they can't get food enough to live on."

This was the statement of the leaders of the posses which are hunting the Allen outlaws for the courthouse murders of March 14.

After another day's hide-and-seek all down the south side of the Blue Ridge, in which the posse often were near the Allens, and even found the initials from Sidna's saddle pad, part of his horse's bridal, and the remains of a meal hastily eaten by the outlaws, the detectives declared their final assault upon the gang might be delayed several days.

"The posse cannot move tonight," said one of the leaders. "To move about in the thick blackness of the mountains might mean a fall over a precipice. To use lanterns would awken the countryside and set up a barking of dogs that would betray us. We have guards at all the feasible exits from the mountains and the Allens cannot get away."

A posse of fourteen spent last night in Floyd Allen's barn, R. 2, Willis, one of the attorneys for the Allens, declared today that the families of Floyd and Victor were destitute, and that neighbors feared to aid them.

When the reconstructed Carroll County Court convenes tomorrow, some indictments for complicity in the court house assassination are expected.

According to a report received here from Blue Fields, West Va., the Hatfields of West Virginia are willing to go into Virginia and assist in the search for the Allens.

A new Grand Jury was summoned and was in court ready to be empanelled today.

COAKLEY SAYS HE NEEDS QUIET

Attorney Alfred Hayes today visited Timothy W. Coakley at Pierce Farm, where the latter was taken for observation on his sanity, with a view to ascertaining whether the noise outside Attorney Coakley's windows was such as to prevent his sleeping, and if so, to arrange for a change of quarters.

"There is one request I would like to make of you," said Attorney Coakley to Superintendent Frost today, "and that is not to let anyone disturb me while I am in the sun parlor. The thing I'm getting on my nerves and I need a rest.

"I had a good sleep last night and I have no kick to make regarding my treatment here. I am not mad. The noise in other times is other parts of the institution, but while I am in the sun parlor I would like absolute quiet, none.

In Observation Ward.

"What I want to do is to show these people I am not what they think I am, and I need a quiet place to map out the plans of my defense when my case comes up for a decision.

Coakley is confined in the observation ward. He has one of the best rooms in the house, and does as he pleases. He has the run of the institution. Judge Dewey was with Coakley in the sun parlor for a few minutes today. They held a short conversation, and Coakley pleaded other engagement and left the judge to himself.

"Mr. Coakley is one of the best patients we have ever had at Austin Farm," said Dr. Frost. "He is confined here for a week for observation and is being given every attention. He is apparently satisfied for as yet he has registered no protest.

"Mr. Coakley is allowed to have all the physicians he wants visit him, but, aside from these, Attorney Hayes and a few other close personal relatives, nobody is permitted to see him. Dr. Dewey and Dr. Roberts, the insanity experts, will visit him every day while he is here as they will have to testify when the case comes up in court. They were with him a short while today.

Holds Good Appetite.

"The confinement of Mr. Coakley has apparently had no effect upon his appetite. He ate his breakfast and dinner with the other inmates today. This was at his own volition. I asked him if he did not prefer to have his meals served in his rooms but he refused and said, 'While I am in here I might as well do as the others do.'"

PRESS ASSOCIATION HEAD SUES BROKER

NEW YORK, March 26.—Courtland Smith, president of the American Press Association, has filed an action in the Supreme Court to recover $50,000 damages from William R. Britton, a stock broker. Smith charges that Britton said among other false statements that Smith paid his stenographer extra salary so that he could swear in her presence when he felt like it.

1,612,270 Library Books Read in 1911

Wadlin's Report Shows Two Volumes Were Taken Out for Every Person in Boston.

Boston maintained its reputation as the home of America last year by reading 1,612,270 volumes taken from the Public Library. The report of Librarian H. G. Wadlin shows that two books were taken out for every person in the city.

Brighton uses more books in its schools and institutions than any other section of the city, 16,915, with East Boston next, with 10,350. Mr. Wadlin tells of many thefts of books.

CAMBRIDGE MAN ROUTS BURGLARS

Burglars attempting to enter the home of Albert J. Osborn of Auburn street, Cambridge, early today, were frightened from their work by Osborn, who was awakened by the noise of their operations.

He ran into Station 2 in Central square, and reported that burglars were trying to break into his house. He was not exactly kind at the time and he startled the police by his sensational outcry to the station.

Patrolmen Dunica, Doran and Sawyer hurried to the house and found that the burglars had fled. The policemen found a twisted key stuck in the lock of the outside door. The burglars had evidently been frightened away. Osborn's father was a Cambridge policeman before his death.

COMMERCE SCHOOL MASTER LECTURES

Lyman G. Smith, master of the High School of Commerce, lectured at the school today and told the students about the early commercial enterprise of New England seaports. He traced the causes which resulted in the great gains from early foreign trade and described the circumstances and perils of the time, resulting in great losses from shipwreck, war and piracy, while vast fortunes were accumulating and the American flag floated in nearly all the great harbors of the globe. The great changes in Boston since the prosperous days of foreign commerce by sailing ships was illustrated by views of the water front a hundred years ago.

JUDGE CORBETT IS CONFIRMED

Judge Joseph J. Corbett today was confirmed by the Civil Service Commission for the office of Corporation Counsel for the city of Boston.

Judge Corbett's name was sent to the Civil Service Commission on March 13 by Mayor Fitzgerald to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Thomas M. Babson. The position carries a salary of $8,000 per annum.

NEWSBOYS' ICE CARNIVAL AT ARENA BIG EVENT

It was Newsboys' Carnival Night at the Boston Arena last evening and to borrow the phrase of the "newsies," it was "some night." Never before has the Arena witnessed such an enthusiastic throng.

Expert, professional and amateur hockey teams have held sway at the ice palace, society has had its nights, not for real unadulterated joy and enthusiasm, last night's event is see the vernacular, had them "lashed to the mast."

From all over Greater Boston the boys who sell the AMERICANS were on hand to take part in the festivities. And when they mustered their best brand of yells, they had the Harvard rooting section and the Comanche war whoop beaten to a whisper.

Great Night for Both Young and Old.

And the older folks, customers and well wishers of the hustling newsies, were present in large numbers. They seemed to find nearly as much enjoyment in the outing as the little chaps, and when the "newsies" gave three cheers and a tiger for the AMERICAN, under the leadership of "Happy," they joined in the cheer as well.

The carnival brought one fact to view, and that was there are some sterling skaters among the little fellows who sell papers in Greater Boston.

The competition was of the keenest sort in all the events. The way some of the boys hurry up distance with their sharp steel runners, was remarkable. As a result some exceptionally fast time was recorded.

The events included races for boys of all ages from twelve years old up to twenty years. In addition there were races by girls, a special match race for the amateur championship of the State, a handicap race for the newsboy championship, jumping exhibition by Professor Gordon Thompson, all fancy and ludicrous skating by William F. Merritt and Ernest Dutton.

Jimmy Walsh, the champion bantam-weight boxer, was the starter in the various events and he was one of the chief attractions for many of the little fellows, who could not keep from calling out, "Hello Chimmie."

The other officials were: Referee, Matthew Mann; judges, J. A. Scott and A. Sullivan; clerk of course, H. O'Day; assistant clerk of course, Leroy J. Keith.

That it was a big event with the "newsies" was attested by the early arrival of the numerous delegations, who arrived in big squads. Long before the doors were opened they filled St. Botolph street in front of the building. An hour later more than one thousand newsboys had crowded into the structure.

From the moment they entered until they left, they kept up a continual din. Cheers were uncorked with the greatest gusto at the least provocation.

Words of encouragement were hurled across the Arena at "Mickey," "Danny," and "Tray" as they whirled around the ice in the various competitions of speed.

Dorchester Boy the Star.

Fred W. Adams of Dorchester was the real star of the evening. He not only won the one-half mile race for boys over sixteen years of age, with comparative ease, but he also captured the title of amateur champion in the mile handicap event for that honor.

Charlie Gallant of East Boston also proved a speedy youth, for he finished second to Adams in the championship event and third in the half-mile.

Little Teddy Lang of the West End showed his claws as a speed merchant by whirling to victory the event for boys under twelve years and then finishing fourth in the mile handicap against much larger opponents.

This proved a good opener for the next event on the program. It was a hockey match between the Newsboy Regulars and the Yannigans. Funny, is a mild term in applying to it. It was a scream all around. The boys were earnest and serious in their work but the youngsters on the sidelines and the spectators, when the fast and furious event ever witnessed on the ice at the Arena.

The Regulars were captained by Jakey Rosenstein, and the Yannigan leader was Barney Davis. Little Teddy Long was the hero of the game, for although he had a stick bigger than himself, he assisted in making the first goal and also raised the second goal for his team.

The first race was a quarter of a mile scamp for boys between ten and twelve years old. There was a big field, and the boys got away in good shape at the crack of the pistol in Jimmy Walsh's hands. Little Johnny Gillen of the South End held out in the lead but he was soon overhauled by Teddy Long and Marcel Aditto, who finished ahead of him at the tape. The other entrants were strung out like a procession, so fast did the three leaders go.

The second event brought out the boys between twelve and fourteen years of age. So numerous were the number of contestants entered in this event that it was necessary to run off three heats before the final was run.

Girls Show Great Speed.

Many of the boys were evenly matched for speed in this race, and the finishes in all three heats were close. The final heat was also a nip and tuck affair, with Frank Storey of the South End emerging the winner. Frank Jefferson of Roxbury was second and Elmer Ward of the South End was third.

The third event was a race for girls, in which five of the speediest girl skaters in this State were entered. Miss Belle Boyd of Dorchester, went out and set the pace. For more than half the distance Miss Boyd held the lead, but on the sixth lap she fell, and Agnes Brown of Somerville went to the front, holding the slight advantage to the finish. Miss Boyd finished second and Dolly Pearson was third.

The race for boys between fourteen and sixteen years was the next event. Leo Vess of Arlington and Gerry Parris of the West End had an interesting struggle for the lead throughout, but Peas proved the strongest at the finish and won by several feet. J. L. Korb of Roxbury finished third.

Adams an Easy Winner.

The half-mile race for boys over sixteen years old, was made a runaway match by Fred Adams, who left his field behind and finished with a commanding lead. Joe Korb was second and Charlie Gallant third.

The mile race for the newsboy championship witnessed a large number of starters, but when it was run down the jeweler himself was the winner. Fred Adams proved his mettle by capturing first place.

The fight for second place was a struggle however, between Charlie Gallant and Albert Bowery of Jamaica Plain. Gallant had a spurt for the finish and so beat Bowery at the end.

The special match race for the State amateur championship was a fast one. T. T. March of Dorchester took the lead from the start and was never headed, finishing ahead of Philip Hichenburg, who was second by several yards. Harry Nevins of Brookline was third.

Gold, silver and bronze medals were awarded to the winners in each race.

The summary:

Quarter mile race, boys ten to fourteen years old—Won by Frank Long, West End; Marcel Aditto, South End; second, Gerald Walsh; third, Leo Ryan. Time, 44.2-5 seconds.

Half mile race, boys fourteen to sixteen years old—Won by Frank Storey, South End; Frank Jefferson, Roxbury, second; Elmer Ward, Roxbury, third. Time, 54.2-5 seconds.

Half mile race for girls—Won by Agnes Seabrook, Somerville; Frances Brown, Somerville, second; Dolly Pearson, Dorchester, third. Time, 1 minute 10 seconds.

Quarter mile race, boys fourteen to sixteen years old—Won by Leo Vess, Arlington; Gerry Parris, West End, second; J. L. Korb, Roxbury, third. Time, 32 1-5 seconds.

Half mile race, boys sixteen years old—Won by Fred W. Adams, Dorchester; J. L. Korb, Roxbury, second; Charlie Gallant, East Boston, third. Time, 1 minute 10 2-5 seconds.

Special championship, one mile—Won by Fred Adams, Dorchester; Charlie Gallant, East Boston, second; Albert Bowery, Jamaica Plain, third. Time, 3 minutes 5 seconds.

Special mile race—Won by T. T. March, Dorchester; Philip Hichenburg, Dorchester, second; Brookline, third. Time, 3 minutes 2 4-5 seconds.

Relay race, quarter mile—Won by Bernard Dalton and Leo Ryan. Time, 44 seconds.

SETTLE WELSH MINERS' STRIKE

LONDON, March 26.—Definite announcement of the ending of the coal strike in North Wales was made today. The operators have granted a minimum wage to be fixed by joint conference between the representatives of the miners and coal owners and work will be resumed in the collieries at once.

If this action is followed throughout Wales, England and Scotland, it is said a minimum wage bill granting the men's demands by law will not be necessary, as the action of the North Wales owners in granting the demand is looked upon as a victory for both the miners and the government. Also, it brought to light the possibility that the government had used the wage bill as a club to compel the operators to get into line, and belief is expressed that the government leaders never intended to push the bill through to final action.

It is feared all the men are dead. The explosion was caused by the accumulation of gas in one of the mine drifts, according to reports that reached here, one of the miners carelessly lighted a match and the explosion followed. Immediately after the explosion the mine was filled with deadly after-damp. There were thirty-six men at work when the mine officials reached the scene of the explosion. Deputy Mine Inspector Arthur Mitchell soon reached the scene and organized rescue parties, but the men were driven back by the after-damp after they had penetrated a short distance.

According to a report, Premier Asquith and his colleagues decided upon new proposals for submission to the miners and operators. These proposals were said to have been told before King George who gave them his sanction. Some of the miners' leaders declared that if today's efforts to reach a settlement were futile that the negotiations would probably be broken off.

Another joint conference was called for this afternoon in the Foreign Office, with Premier Asquith presiding. The government was represented by several other members of the cabinet, while the members of the executive committee represented the men. A number of coal owners delegated by the coal operators association represented capital.

REFUSE GOVERNOR AND WIFE ROOM IN CHICAGO HOTEL

CHICAGO, March 26.—Governor or no Governor, it makes no difference to the clerks at the Great Northern Hotel—you can't get a room there for your wife and yourself unless you have a ticket. Governor John Marshall of Indiana tried it and failed. The Governor and his wife arrived in the morning and went to the Great Northern. The Governor registered. The clerk's tone became icy when he learned Mr. Marshall had no baggage. "We can't accommodate you. This hotel does not accept couples without baggage."

"Young man, I'll have you understand that I am the Governor of Indiana and that is my wife," the Governor fairly shouted as he grasped Mrs. Marshall by her arm and rushed out of the building.

English Women Won't Wear Those Paniers

Object to Putting on Weight After Dieting to Tube Skirt Size.

LONDON, March 26.—English women, or at least a goodly number of them, are revolting against the paniers, which the leading dressmakers of Paris and London are seeking to make the distinguishing feature of the new season's styles. Hundreds of fashionable women have put their dainty feet down positively and refused to accept the panier.

Recent fashions required the figure of the well-dressed woman to be of a sinuous slenderness, and those, by severely dieting themselves, have succeeded in meeting the necessities of the tube skirt, are unwilling now to go through the process of putting on adipose tissue, without which the experts recognize, the panier would look "monstrous," to quote a fashion writer, who writes with a nice disregard for the meaning of words, and would compel almost as much laughter as a stout woman in a bobble skirt.

On the other hand, the best dressmakers assert that for seven long years women have been parading in a wilderness of ugliness, and that the perfect panier in its real beauty, say in soot-green peau de gant taffetas, is the true vision of loveliness which is longed for.

MAN IS BITTEN BY DOG IN LYNN

Joseph M. Asselbos was attacked by a large dog in West Lynn today. The dog bit a piece of flesh as large as a half-dollar from Mr. Asselbos' cheek. He escaped after a running fight of a quarter of a mile with the brute.

Mr. Asselbos is thirty-five years old and lives at No. 12 Light street court, West Lynn. He was walking along Hathaway street at 8 o'clock when he met the dog, a big powerful animal looking, as Asselbos said later, like a cross between a St. Bernard and a collie.

Mr. Asselbos did not notice the dog particularly. He was about to pass the animal when it suddenly growled, and before Mr. Asselbos could dodge, sprang at his throat. The dog missed the throat grip, but snapped its teeth together on Mr. Asselbos's left cheek, ripping out a piece of flesh.

Mr. Asselbos tried to grasp the dog by the throat but was unable to hold the brute off. Then the man ran, the dog pursuing and snapping at him. In the flight the dog managed to bite Mr. Asselbos twice again on the left cheek, opening the wound of the first bite more.

He did not try to fight the dog after that but hid for his life. No one came to his aid till a man appeared from a side street. Then the dog turned down another street and disappeared. Mr. Asselbos went to Lynn Hospital.

PREPARE FOR THE CRISIS

ORDER AT ONCE

SAVE COAL BY GAS HEATING

Owing to the present controversy in the coal fields, the price of hard coal has already advanced 50c per ton and even now there is a shortage of supply.

Take advantage of the experience gained during the great coal strike of 1902-3. Avoid a repetition of the expense and hardship by discarding the coal stove once for all, and putting in gas.

Coal brings dirt, discomfort and drudgery, and is subject to marked increases in price and failure of supply at times of trouble in the coal fields. Gas service is convenient and economical, constant and dependable.

Realizing these advantages of gas, and to ensure a constant supply of fuel, prudent people are already installing gas stoves, water heaters and room-heating appliances to meet the crisis.

The rush of orders will soon tax our Appliance Department to the limit. We therefore urge you to place your order for gas equipment at once, without waiting until the failure of the coal supply places you in actual distress.

Save all the heating coal you can by using gas. The comparatively small amount of heating required from now on for a few hours of the day, may be easily supplied by the use of a Gas Log, Portable Heater or Gas Steam Radiator.

By cooking and heating with gas you can save what coal you have until next winter, when you may be sorely in need of it.

Send for a Representative or call at 16-24 West Street or at any of our local offices.

ROOSEVELT WILL LOSE IN MAINE

PORTLAND, Me., March 26.—The Pine Tree State will on Friday register its choice for William Howard Taft as the Republican nominee for President.

Colonel Roosevelt, despite the warmth of his greeting in Maine, left the State Sunday convinced that he had little or no chance whatever to secure even one of the twelve delegates allotted from Maine to the convention in Chicago.

Even "Bill" Sewall, the former president's old Maine guide, believes that the chances are small in the upper counties for any great showing for Roosevelt. "Old Guide Bill," as Colonel Roosevelt calls him, met the Colonel in Portland and told him nicely but bluntly that the sentiment in Aroostook County was all Taft. "Bill" Sewall is collector for the customs district of Aroostook County, appointed first by Roosevelt and re-appointed by Taft. The opinion of the former President's old guide was strengthened by those of State leaders, friends of Colonel Roosevelt, who informed him, even while the cheers of thousands were ringing in his ears, that he must not count too much on Maine.

Taft Men Work Overtime.

The Taft men are anxious for Maine's expression for a particular reason. Maine is the first of the New England States to go up record between Taft and Roosevelt. The Taft men, with a splendid organization in the State, and an organization working overtime, make the entire delegation for the Taft for the effect it will have on the country. Colonel Roosevelt wanted it also for the same reason, and was thus induced on the eve of his trip West to make the dash into New England.

Maine has no direct primaries. It elects some 1,200 delegates to a State convention, and these delegates select the representation to Chicago. The "caucuses," as they are called in Maine, are under the direct domination practically of local organizations. They elect the delegates to the State convention in much the style of the old Massachusetts caucuses before the direct primaries law went into effect. There will be no opportunity for Maine voters to vote upon the question of preference between Taft and Roosevelt. Both in the large cities will have rival tickets of delegates, in the smaller places old-line organization men will be elected delegates and these are almost wholly Taft. The Roosevelt fight is being conducted in the cities, outside the cities there is no Roosevelt organization in Maine.

Roosevelt Learns Truths.

While Colonel Roosevelt had a warm reception from the moment he crossed the border into Maine, he learned at station after station where he shook hands with assembled crowds that things were not wholly as the pundits of the throngs indicated.

At Old Orchard about all the town turned out, and as the Colonel shook hands this among other remarks greeted his ears: "You're all right, Teddy, but you're making a mistake this time."

"We have remarked a typical Maine farmer as he shook the Colonel's hand, "but why do you vote in and split the party? This belongs to Taft."

While receiving in his Falmouth Hotel, and while everything kindly was being said as the crowd of several thousand went by, a old state of Maineyy solemnly advised the Colonel to quit his fight.

"It's all right, Teddy, but you're making a mistake this time."

"Tide Against Roosevelt."

WASHINGTON, March 26.—George B. Leighton, a member of the Republican State Committee of New Hampshire, who is in Washington today, says that since Mr. Roosevelt made his Columbus speech the tide has turned against him. "Governor Foss," he said, "has lost in this campaign most of his personal following of two years ago. Of the five members of the Governor's Council, but one is now with him in his efforts to nominate Colonel Roosevelt."

Roosevelt to Return.

CONCORD, N. H., March 26.—Friday, April 5, has been the day fixed for Theodore Roosevelt's visit to New Hampshire. It is expected he will speak in Nashua in the forenoon, Concord in the afternoon and Manchester in the evening.

ASKS HAT JURY BE DISCHARGED

CHICAGO, March 26.—Miss Marion Talbot, whom Attorney Walker, counsel for Miss Esther Mercy is suing in $100,000 for alleged slander, today resumed his argument on his motion to take the case from the jury.

Harry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago, of which Miss Talbot is dean of women, was present throughout the arguments.

Attorney Walker said that no showing of slander against Dean Talbot had been made by counsel for Miss Mercy.

"Instead," said Attorney Walker, "we have been scandalized by this woman and I am seeking to save the time of this court and the jury. I am trying to stop the advertising which this woman is getting for the vaudeville stage. She has received thousands of dollars' worth of advertising."

Repeated attempts to question Warren P. Reynolds, fiance of Miss Mercy, concerning the incidents of his life and particularly about his divorce and different charges made against him, were blocked by the court's declaring them not germane.

Miss Mercy was recalled to the stand for a few minutes and questioned concerning a letter in which she had referred to the loss of cigarettes from the $250 hat given her by friends.

Miss Mercy, asked if she had not sought to have a vaudeville sketch written for her, said:

"I tried to get the sketch because I was induced or solicited to get some money to fight this case."

RELIABLE METHODS OF BEAUTY CULTURE

TO MAKE THE HAIR FLUFFY—The reason most women's hair fails to retain its fluffy softness after shampooing is due to the scalp not being thoroughly cleansed. The soap and ordinary shampoo mixtures will not remove all dirt. The woman who wants a perfect shampoo should try a teaspoonful of Canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water, followed by proper rinsing. This shampoo causes the hair to dry very quickly, without straightening, leaves the hair very bright, soft and easy to arrange.

FINE BEAUTY LOTION—No modern discovery has proven such a boon to woman's good looks as a lotion made by dissolving 4 ounces of spurmax in 1 pint of witch hazel (or bay water, they are the same) and 1 teaspoonful of glycerine. This is very fine for improving a shiny, oily, sallow skin. It makes one's complexion charmingly beautiful and gives to it that much-admired smooth, velvety appearance of the well-ordered look. As a skin whitener it is unequaled, and is superior to any face powder, because it stays on much better.

LIQUID FAT-REDUCER — Wonderful successes are reported from the use of parmalin as a weight-reducer. Dissolve 4 ounces of parmalin in 1 pints of hot water and take a tablespoonful before meals. This harmless remedy removes fat rapidly without resorting to dieting or needless exercising. It leaves the skin free from wrinkles and flabbiness, and has given relief to many who have been trying vainly for years to remove their excess fat.

TO MAKE HAIRS VANISH—Make a paste with a little delatone and water, then spread on hairy surface. After two or three minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. While the skin is left smooth and firm. This is a quick, painless method, and rarely fails to bring results.

NAGEL REFUSES TO DEPORT BOY

Pete Chasen, a Russian Hebrew, who has been detained at the immigrant detention station on Long Island since February 15, when he was ordered deported by a board of special inquiry, was today ordered to be allowed to land by Secretary Charles Nagel, to whom the case was taken on an appeal.

The boy arrived in Boston on the White Star liner Megantic on February 13, being a saloon passenger. He was examined by Drs. M. Victor Safford and H. B. C. Riemer, United States Marine Hospital surgeons, who certified he was a pronounced imbecile. His father, Harry Chasen of Willimantic, Ct., a naturalized citizen, got out a habeas corpus to prevent deportation and the case has been bitterly fought for weeks by the father and his attorney on one side and the immigration officials at this port on the other.

Secretary Nagel made a trip to Boston to see the lad, after which he made his decision to land him on a sufficient bond. The Secretary found that the father was well to do and that it would be a hardship to deport the son, as all the rest of the family are in this country.

The immigration officials contended that the law was specific and that young Chasen's case came within one of its most rigid provisions.

NATIONS DEMAND CHINA DEPOSE TANG SHAO YI

PEKIN, March 26.—A demand, veiled in diplomatic language, has been levied upon the Chinese republic by representatives of the United States, Germany, France and British governments, that Tang Shao Yi be deposed as premier because of his activity in securing the Belgian loan of $750,000. This action followed protests by the four nation group of financiers that the republic was "playing double" in the game of international politics. Chinese statesmen charge that foreign capitalists are conspiring to gain control of the government through its finances.

Society Aids Working Girls Start Vacation Fund Move

MISS THAYER, PROMINENT IN GIRLS' VACATION PLANS

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

One of the newest and most interesting and practical of charities among the fashionables of Boston is the novel plan which the woman's department of the National Civic Federation has adopted of insuring vacations for working girls.

The object is to interest all working girls and women in taking vacations in the country and in saving their money to that end through the year. They declare that a vacation is absolutely necessary to the health of the working woman and will help them to do better work.

The purpose of the new organization is to take charge of the savings, the girls depositing what they can from time to time, and whatever else they deem necessary. The committee is prepared to give all information regarding resorts, boarding houses, charges and fares and the majority of our society girls are busy looking up these places for the girls.

Their object is to give the girls the maximum vacation for the minimum price, so they are investigating all boarding places, hostelries etc. They are later to print a list of these places, the list to be posted in the large stores so that each girl may make her choice and her own arrangements.

The vacation savings fund committee grew out of the idea advanced by the working girls at a meeting held last year in New York. The committee now has entered less than three months and more than 3,000 girls have deposited their savings to an amount of $7,000 and more. Among the most prominent workers in the cause in Boston is Miss Evelyn Thayer, a debutante of two seasons ago and a prominent member of the Vincent Club.

The New York committee says:

"If you save ten cents a week during fifty weeks you will have $5 for your vacation.

"If you save twenty-five cents a week during fifty weeks you will have $12.50 for your vacation.

"This will give you two weeks in the country.

"Small sums put aside weekly are hardly noticed.

"Large sums just before vacation time are often hard to find.

"This often means no country outing.

"Why don't you open an account with the vacation savings fund?

"Come to the vacation committee vacation meetings and find out how to do it.

"When your vacation time comes the committee will help you find the place you want."

The Boston committee is composed as follows:

Mrs. George T. Rice, chairman Massachusetts and Rhode Island Section of the Women's Welfare Department of National Civic Federation.

Mrs. S. S. Hamilton, chairman vacation committee.

STOLEN GEMS ARE RECOVERED

A $3,800 jewel theft known as the Back Bay diamond mystery, which has engaged the attention of private detectives for the past few weeks, has been partially solved by the recovery in Providence of fifty-seven diamonds belonging to Mrs. L. N. Quirin of No. 386 Marlboro street.

The detectives have closely guarded the facts in the case and it is only today that the name of the owner of the diamonds became known. There are many facts still to be explained. It is known that the fifty-seven diamonds recovered in Providence form part of a necklace of 105 stones and a sine-stone Turkish crescent belonging to Mrs. Quirin and stolen from a leading Back Bay hotel a few weeks ago. But just how the theft was accomplished, how the stones were traced to Providence and the other details of the case are features which the detectives are keeping to themselves.

Not for years have diamond thieves secured such booty in just two pieces of jewelry. The moment the loss became known private detectives were engaged and strenuous efforts was made to keep the matter secret.

Tried to Keep it Secret.

The hotel in which the robbery occurred naturally desired to have such a misfortune to one of its guests kept from publication.

Mrs. Quirin was assured, too, that the less said about the case the greater the chances for recovering the property.

Mrs. Quirin, who travels extensively, was on the eve of sailing for Europe when the robbery occurred, so she has given out no information. Her husband at the time of his death fifteen years ago had tanneries at Olean, N. Y., and other places.

Among the many pieces of jewelry owned by Mrs. Quirin have been two which she particularly cherished. One is the necklace of 105 perfect white-stone diamonds. The foundation was of gold platinum, one of the most costly settings known to the jeweler's art. The 105 stones, graduated cunningly, were set in such a way that the necklace could be taken apart to form three distinct bracelets. There was also a diamond string which would be made out of another part of the necklace to form what is known as a drop diamond string. The necklace was valued at $3,000.

$800 Turkish Crescent.

The other jewel valued so highly by Mrs. Quirin was a Turkish crescent containing nine diamonds and appraised at $800.

A few weeks ago, while Mrs. Quirin was at a Back Bay hotel, preliminary to sailing abroad, the diamond necklace and diamond crescent were stolen. The theft was accomplished during the afternoon, while Mrs. Quirin was in the hotel.

The case was given to A. Jackson Norton, superintendent of a detective bureau. Mr. Norton put men on the trail. Mrs. Quirin, meanwhile, sailed for Europe.

Today brought news that fifty-seven of the diamonds, removed from the necklace and crescent, have just been recovered in Providence. The detectives are guarding the name of the Providence person from whom these stones were secured. Search for the remaining stones is being vigorously prosecuted.

MILLINERS ANGRY OVER SELLING OF HATS BY SCHOOL

NEW BRITAIN, Ct., March 26.—Because the girls' branch of the State Trade School here sells the hats made by its pupils, local milliners are up in arms.

A united protest has been suggested by some of the milliners. Miss Hart, superintendent of the school, claims that the practice is fair to the professional milliners because the school does not cut prices.

EXCITEMENT KILLS A NEWBURYPORT MAN

NEWBURYPORT, March 26.—Excitement caused by an attempt to get a fallen horse on its feet caused the death from heart disease of Wilbur S. Porter, fifty-six years old, an expressman, in a blacksmith shop today. He leaves a wife and two daughters, Mrs. George M. Rand of this city and Mrs. John M. Furber of New York city.

DE PONTHEIU SAILS FOR FRANCE IN APRIL

NEW BEDFORD, March 26.—Louis De Pontheiu, who was defeated here last night by Matty Baldwin of Charlestown, will sail for France with his new manager, Frank Erne on April 4. With the experience that he has gained in his bouts with American boxers, Erne is confident that he will prove a good opponent for any of the French lightweights. The two will stay abroad during the Summer.

L. F. Gavet, Broker, Is Ill at Danvers

Has Not Become Adjusted to New Surroundings. Condition Forbids Observation of Mental State.

Louis F. Gavet, the former stock-broker, who was committed to Danvers Insane Asylum last Friday, when indictment charging larceny from customers of the former firm of Gavet & Porter, is ill in the asylum. He has not become adjusted to his new surroundings. His physical condition is not serious but prevents his receiving any visitors and forbids detailed observation of his mental state.

Dr. Kline, superintendent, says Mr. Gavet has not been out of his room since he was committed last Friday, and that it will be a week or ten days before he will have become adjusted to his new surroundings enough to permit observations as to his mind.

$200,000 FIRE AT BELLOWS FALLS; 3 BLOCKS BURNED

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt., March 26.—Three of the principal business structures in this town, the Union and Arms blocks and the Hotel Windham, were destroyed by fire early today, with a loss of $200,000. The burned buildings were located on the east side of the square, and for several hours it was feared the business section would be destroyed.

The flames, however, were confined to the two blocks and the hotel. North Walpole, on the other side of the Connecticut River from here, aided, and the fine fighting force from that town helped materially in stopping the progress of the flames.

THE QUALITY TEST IN TOBACCO

Remarkable Success Based on the Discovery of the Patterson Process

A MODERN LEADER

Increasing Popularity of "the Pipe Smoke for Gentlemen"

Quality has been the keynote of the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Company's business from the beginning. Quality is the explanation of the astonishing success of Tuxedo.

It was in 1856 that the R. A. Patterson Company was founded by the discoverer of the remarkable process that resulted in the famous sliced plug and roll cut tobaccos and that original granulated Burley, "Tuxedo."

Tuxedo was really the culminating triumph of the Patterson process, a process that has utterly defeated every effort at imitation. This exclusive process gives to the fully matured tobacco a cool fragrance, a ripe, mellow flavor in which there is no trace of bite.

The quick, enthusiastic welcome Tuxedo brought about a sale so enormous that from the time it was placed on the market we could not come within a month of meeting orders nor venture to advertise the brand. It is only by greatly extending our factory facilities during the last we have been able to catch up with orders and to place ourselves in a position to tell the surprising Tuxedo story to the world.

Now just watch that Tuxedo story as we tell it in our advertising. You'll like that advertising. It's going to be different—as different as Tuxedo itself. Best of all, it's going to tell you about Tuxedo.

Tuxedo is not only a leader, but its sales increase by leaps and bounds. Its splendid quality does it. The answer's in that ten-cent tin.

There is a finer fragrance, a deeper delight in a ten cent tin of Tuxedo than in any other pipe smoking tobacco in the world. Ask any man who smokes it.

Doesn't fifty years of experience mean something in the production of a perfect grade smoking [illegible] proof. It is [illegible] gentlemen [illegible] but we can [illegible] in ordinary [illegible] which [illegible] but refi[illegible] quality-[illegible] year af[illegible] test of [illegible]

PATTERSON'S Tuxedo TOBACCO

The Pipe Smoke for Gentlemen

We would make it better —but we can't!

We could make it cheaper —but we won't!

Why do the shops sell more Tuxedo than any other brand? Because it has a wonderful flavor, because it can be smoked anywhere without irritating any but the pleasantest tongue or irritate the throat, because it is mellow aroma remains, an aroma that is delightful to everyone. Isn't this in contrast with the pungent, highly flavored tobacco that requires days of airing to get rid of stale odors?

Smoke your pipe of Tuxedo in the parlor or library—anywhere in the house—and no unpleasant odors are left in the draperies. On the contrary, only the delicious fragrance of Tuxedo remains, an aroma that is delightful to everyone. Isn't this in contrast with the pungent, highly flavored tobacco that requires days of airing to get rid of stale odors?

CONNOLLY-WHITE IN FEATURE BOUT AT CENTRAL CLUB

RILEY'S COLUMN

THE single acquisition of Jake Stahl to the fence-busting brigade of he Red Sox will alone make a world of difference in the final American League standing this year, if Jake can hold his gait. The Sox have very much the same team as performed in the first division last year, with the exception of Stahl. Weakness at first base cost many a game. Even if the rest of the team should play no better than the somewhat erratic performances of 1911, it is certain to finish in the first division with first base doctored up.

LARRY GARDNER at third improves with conditions at another important station. Short field seems sure to be bolstered better than it was last summer, since Wagner and Yerkes are both probably better than they were then. It is hard to believe, too, that there will be no improvement at second. The pitching corps looks handier now than in the training season of 1911. Can you figure the Sox out of the first division.

* * *

THE Pilgrims have a team that is individually much better than the one that started last season. The 1911 bunch also lacked the generalship that appears certain to prevail this year. There is no discord in the ranks.

* * *

THE 1911 Boston Nationals were panic stricken at every opportunity. The 1912 team looks as if it would be much steadier under Kling's leadership. So there is hope all around for Boston "fans" this Summer.

* * *

THE Pilgrims at Augusta notice with satisfaction that Young Jake Stahl is such an important factor with the Red Sox. The Kling company has six-year-old Virginia Kling for a mascot. The Sox's manager's son and the Pilgrim manager's daughter will add a child romance to the Boston baseball fond. There is a chance for some diamond romance in about 1925.

* * *

YOUNG Jake, however, must watch out. Miss Kling has found a four-year-old lad in Augusta of whom she thinks so much that she borrowed a dime from her father today to buy him an ice cream. She and her new found friend have arranged a musicale for "get-a-way" night at the Hotel Albion, Augusta, with seats "a nickel a scramble."

* * *

THE young managers of the enterprise are wise entertainment promoters. They gave first news of it to the newspaper men and assigned them that they would be admitted free.

* * *

THE Red Sox will start the homeward strike next Monday, when the Pilgrims will be measuring their skill with that of the Petersburg and Norfolk, Va., baseball teams.

* * *

WHEN the New York baseball writers had nothing else to do the other day they took a fall out of Billy Hamilton, the Pilgrim scout, who was seen hovering about the Giants' camp at Marlin Springs, Texas. When John M. Ward heard what they objected to Hamilton's sight-seeing expedition, he wired to Billy saying that if his presence was objectionable to "Muggsy" McGraw, he ought to "beat it."

* * *

WHEN the telegram reached Marlin, Hamilton had already "beat it," and was next heard from in Memphis, Ala., where he is supposed to be today, looking over the goods around that section.

* * *

PRESIDENT WARD said that he would not object to other magnates' scouts in his own back yard, because he would be glad to have a market for his surplus material. But if any other fellow thought it was contrary to baseball ethics, he would be glad to withdraw his scout.

* * *

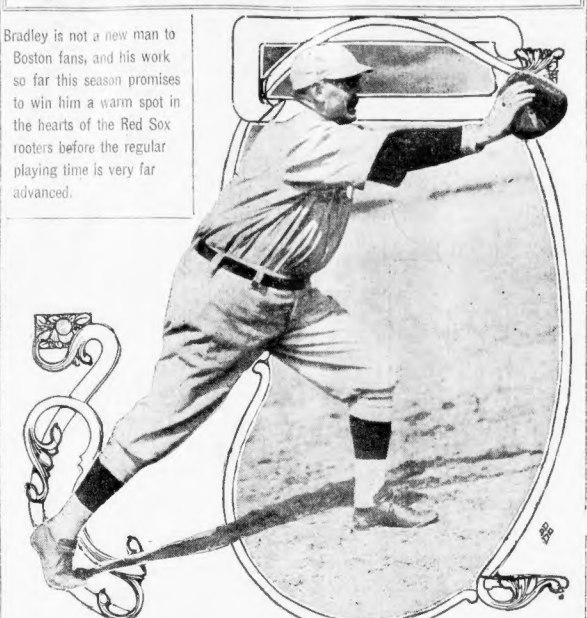
JOHNNY KLING finished the list of the natives of Augusta at billiards last night, beating the best the town produced in the person of a elderly gentleman who has "cleaned up" everything in Augusta. Kling gathered the balls in a corner for a long run and became champion of Augusta.

* * *

WHILE a crowd witnessed the struggle, President Ward and "Hub" Perdue furnished a sideshow with an exhibition of "pocket billiards," the new official name of what we used to know as "pool."

Hugh Bradley, One of Our Best Little Red Sox

Bradley is not a new man to Boston fans, and his work so far this season promises to win him a warm spot in the hearts of the Red Sox rooters before the regular playing time is very far advanced.



Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

ROLLER WINS OVER SAMSON

The wrestling carnival at the Grand Opera House was marred somewhat by injuries to two of the grapplers in the principal bout, but the fans were well pleased with the entertainment, which included several interesting matches between local amateurs.

Dr. Roller, of Seattle, won the feature bout from Samson, the German strong man, gaining the first and only fall in 34 minutes and 30 seconds. Samson's shoulder was dislocated by the fall and he was unable to go on.

The second match brought together Perelli and Polski. It was a close contest while it lasted, each man winning a fall, Polski gaining his through Perelli being disqualified for using the toe hold, which Manager Tousley had barred.

Perelli was a quick winner in the second match, downing his man in 4 minutes and 15 seconds. Doyle was injured and the contest was awarded to Perelli.

Three pairs of local amateur wrestlers were given tryouts and they furnished a set of action. Young Brusel, 162, and Bob Tracey, 156, wrestled 10 minutes without a fall and the bout was called a draw.

George Nelson, 142, and Dan Moore, 146, wrestled 4 minutes 28 seconds, when Nelson with a half nelson won the fall.

MATTY BALDWIN WINS OVER FRENCH BOXER

Matty Baldwin of Charlestown won the decision over Louis De Pontilieu of France in a fast and clever twelve-round bout before the New Bedford A. C. The Frenchman was hungry for punishment and kept boring in most of the time. Baldwin being content to let Pontilieu bring the milling to him till the closing rounds. In the preliminaries Ben Langley won from Young Slocum, in an eight-round bout, and Kid Harry of Fall River went eight rounds to a draw with "Battling" Ryan of Pawtucket.

MANY TEAMS ENTERED IN MILITARY SHOOT

A good set of events have been arranged by the National Rifle Academy for its annual three shoot, beginning on April 1, at its ranges on Federal street. This is the first military shoot held at the academy, but it is expected that many companies will enter teams. A team will comprise twenty men. They will shoot as individuals any time during the month and the total score will count for the record. Ten shots will be fired offhand and ten shots prone in four strings of five shots each. The distance is seventy-five feet.

TECHNOLOGY CREW HAS FIRST WORKOUT

The Tech crew was given its first workout on the river yesterday afternoon. Coach O'Leary took the men for a half mile trip up the river from the B. A. A. boathouse, but the water was so rough and cold that the practice was made short. Captain W. Gere was unable to row but helped to coach the men. The squad will begin to-day. The house until the funds are procured for a boathouse on the new Tech site.

OLYMPIC BICYCLE TRYOUTS AT NEWARK

NEWARK, March 26.—The final tryouts for the Olympic cycle team will take place at Newark on Saturday afternoon, May 25, according to the announcement of Richard P. Kelsey, chairman of the National Cycling Association, under whose auspices the affair will be held. Definite action on the question was made Saturday night at a meeting of the cyclists' sub-committee.

CHRIS AND MARTEL IN FINAL STRINGS

John Christopher and Chester Martel will meet at the Boylston Alleys tonight in the final ten strings of their match. Christopher has a slight lead of twelve pins, and tonight's match should bring on some good bowling. One of the largest crowds of the season is expected to be on hand.

KUBIAK AFTER "HOPES."

NEW YORK, March 26.—Al Kubiak, the Michigan heavyweight, is out with a challenge to any of the host of "white hopes," especially Al Palzer, Carl Morris or Jim Stewart.

ALL STAR CARD AT CENTRAL A. C.

By JACK CONWAY.

Boxing "fans," whose nerves are affected by cheering, had better not attend the show at the Central A. C. tonight, for if they do they will have to spend the next few weeks at a rest cure. The West End Club has arranged a rattling good card for this evening, and there should be excitement galore.

Johnny Connolly of Scotland and Joe White of South Boston are scheduled to meet in the main bout of ten rounds to a decision.

Connolly came to this country last April. He entered an amateur tournament at the Armory A. A. and easily won the premier honors in his class. His fine work attracted the attention of Eddie Mack, who induced Connolly to turn "pro."

Ever since joining the ranks of the money chasers the Scotchman has experienced a great deal of success, and has yet to meet defeat. He is now considered one of the best men of his weight in New England.

White is sure to give Connolly a great battle. The South Boston boy has made an enviable record the past Winter.

The final bout of eight rounds will be between Joe Farren of East Boston and Eddie Keagan of Quincy, and it is likely to be a regular swatfest. Farren is picked to win.

Chester Wolcott of Malden will meet Kid Curtis of Cambridge in a six-round preliminary. The other preliminary will bring together Frank Russell and Kid Wright.

Gibbons and Denning Get Going Tonight.

Mike Gibbons and Jack Denning will clash in a ten-round bout at New York tonight. The contest is arousing a great amount of interest. There is little to choose between the two men. When they last fought, Denning had a shade on the St. Paul youth.

The men will weigh in at 145 pounds early in the afternoon. This means that each man will enter the ring at about 151 pounds. Gibbons has given up all hope of becoming the welterweight champion, and will soon start after the leading middleweights. Gibbons, like several other aspirants for the welter title, cannot make the welterweight limit of 142 pounds ringside.

Who Wants to Fight? Eldridge Wants Work.

"Gunboat" Everett Eldridge cannot get a match these days. And it isn't because Eldridge is not a good fighter. Far be it from this. The reason Eldridge is unable to get bouts is because he packs a terrific punch in both hands, and when he lands a wallop his opponent becomes dizzy and begins to think that there is no place like home. Eldridge is ready to meet any 150-pounder in New England, and is particularly anxious to try conclusions with one Honey Melody.

J. Conway of Roxbury. Can It Be Our Jack?

There will be four bouts at the Commercial A. C. of Malden tonight. The full card is as follows: J. Conway of Roxbury vs. Joe Budreau of Somerville, eight rounds. Young Bullard vs. Young Morris, eight rounds. Eddie Keaney vs. Young Aronson, six rounds. Ed Walker vs. Joe Trennor.

Half Hundred Stars In Amateur Bouts.

Over fifty of the best amateur boxers in this section of the country will compete at the New England amateur boxing championships which will take place at Mechanics building Saturday night. The first bout will be started at 7 o'clock sharp.

Dr. J. H. Carmichael, president, and H. M. Clark, secretary, have been selected as the committee to name the two horses to go North to make the best showing in the Metropolitan event.

John Dovey Back as Club President

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 26.—John Dovey, former president of the Boston National League Baseball Club, has entered into an agreement with William Grayson, owner of the local American Association Club to go to Winchester in the Blue Grass League as president of that club.

The deal for the minor league club will be completed tomorrow, and Dovey will go there at once to take up his new duties.

For several months Dovey has been doing scout duty for President Grayson. A few days ago Grayson had an opportunity of buying a club which he could use as a "farm," and he immediately signed up Dovey as head of his latest acquisition.

Battle for Places on Dartmouth Team

HANOVER, N. H., March 26.—After four weeks of baseball practice, Coach Woods of the Dartmouth Varsity team, is now giving his attention to "inside" work. The couch has not as yet made the final cut in the list of candidates.

There are three candidates for catching, Sullivan, Steen and Nolan, and the squad is rich in pitchers. From last year there is Eckstrom and Morey and several of the year's freshmen twirlers are out for places.

Bennett and Cook are having an even battle for first base. Kennedy, Sullivan and Fahey are out for second and Kinsell at short seems to have first call. Rollins and Reinage are the candidates for third, with Rollins a bit in the lead.

GRAYS GIVEN FIRST WORKOUT TODAY

PROVIDENCE, March 26.—At Providence Baseball Club headquarters it was stated that the first lineup of players as teams at the training camp at Savannah, Ga., will be ordered today.

Captain Jake Atz, whose failure to report at the training quarters had given Manager Lake and the owners of the club much concern, has turned up and was warmly greeted.

Atz was much concerned to learn that all kinds of rumors had been current concerning his failure to report. The reason he did not report earlier, he said, was that there were washouts all along the line. Atz looks to be in the pink of condition.

WORLD'S BOWLING RECORD SMASHED

PATERSON, March 26.—The Grand Central five-man team of Rochester, N. Y., broke the world's bowling record of 2,969 in the National Bowling Association tournament last night.

The Rochester five scored 2,987 as a three-game total, or 28 pins better than the record made by the "Bonds" of Cleveland in the N. B. A. tournament at Buffalo last year.

I.—HATCHING THE PLOT.

Desperate Desmond, having fooled the Chinese jurors and caused all the persons in the court to chase out in the street in his stead, has the hope of catching him, now looks out of the window at the crowd. The scoundrel has a plan to get a long sentence in jail for our hero. Nothing is too villainous for Desmond.

II.—ARRESTING THE HERO.

With the aid of the fake papers drawn up by the unscrupulous Desmond, Claude is arrested by the Chinese police authorities. Despite his protestations of innocence the hero is hauled away toward the jail, and the Chinese police treat him as a dangerous person, on account of his false reputation for daring deeds of evil.

III.—OFF TO THE PRISON.

In the ruthless power of Desmond, Claude Delaire is forced to drag along a heavy ball and chain as he proceeds toward the Chinese jail. The wretched lover has been separated from his sweetheart and is now headed for the jail, where he may have to spend the remainder of his young life.

IV.—ROSAMOND SEEKS WORK.

Disheartened by the loss of her hero, the beautiful Rosamond resolves to make her own living, and accordingly seeks employment on the stage. Her beauty and her voice qualify her especially for such a career, and she has no fear that she will not make a success.

V.—THE CONVICT'S TREAT.

Poor Claude, now arrayed in stripes, is merely a numbered convict now instead of a gallant hero. That is, in the eyes of the warden. Everyone of his friendless lives. When she appears on the stage Rosamond is surprised to see her lover in the house, and in convict garb. What the beautiful girl plans will be shown tomorrow.

"ADAMSTON," began Collingwood, in stern, earnest tones, "you have a right to think anything you please of me. You can call me anything you please, and I am not in a position to take offence at it. I wanted to tell you this at the outset, so that what I have to say may be as brief as possible, and you can save your breath and trouble if you are thinking up nasty things to say to me."

He paused, but Adamston did not speak.

"My purpose in coming here may seem strange to you in view of my recent conduct. Yes, I betrayed your friendship and tried to win your wife—I succeeded as well to the one as I failed miserably in the other. I have come here to try to prevent you from doing a great wrong to a woman who loves you as few men are loved—a love that I would give my right arm for, but I can never have."

He paused. Adamston picked up his hat.

"Is that all?" he asked coldly.

"No, that is only the beginning. I love your wife, but she does not love me and never will and never has. I am responsible for putting her into a position that was very compromising. I did not know until too late that she had no idea what she was doing. She has never said a word to me that you could not hear, so matter what I may have said—and she has never done anything that can justly reflect on her good name. I admit that the facts may seem to be against what I am saying—but it is true, I swear on my honor!"

Adamston's eyes flashed.

"Your what?" he asked. Collingwood winced and drew a sharp breath.

"That wasn't necessary, Adamston, though it may have been deserved," he said steadily. "I am not going to get excited. I haven't time and there is too much at stake. My only desire now is for Peggy's happiness."

Collingwood's Wish

"You will have an opportunity to make her happy in a few days—if you have any manhood or decency left," said the husband, calmly.

Again Collingwood's eyelids flickered under the insult, and a darker color crept into his cheeks. But his voice was unchanged when he spoke again, excepting that it was a little more earnest.

"I wish that were true! But it isn't, Adamston. If you cast her off her life is broken—ruined for all time. She is not the kind of a woman to love twice as she loves you!"

"Is there anything further," interrupted Adamston.

"Yes," returned the other unmoved. "Whatever I am I know that you, Adamston, are a man of honor. If I tell you something that will make you change your mind, will you give me your word that you will not—no matter what I do, whether you are convinced or not?"

Adamston studied his opponent and then nodded gravely. Collingwood drew a long breath.

"Adamston, that trip to Paris was not all pure deceit, as you suspected. It was about I swear to you that Peggy believed that it was, and still believes it. You will—cannot tell me!" he would kill her!" His voice sank, and he paused, struggling to steadily himself before going on. Adamston stared at him, wondering what had so wrought the whole thing to self and fixed matters so we could get away without also the slip at Boulogne. I believed that Peggy knew, and I thought it was all right that she didn't. I fought for her with myself, and pleaded with myself that she told me she would rather die than desert you. I believed that, and I still thought. If you know anything at all you can tell that I am speaking the truth now. That you could not take her only son more than you would of your own—everything that I have done in this world since the best that Peggy is as innocent or even thinking wrong as our unborn child, and ever gave this world!"

"Why?" asked Adamston did not speak.

"I suppose that is why" inquired Adamston, with chilly politeness.

"Yes."

"Then good day, Mr. Collingwood." And he bowed him toward the door.

Collingwood drew a deep breath and opened his lips as if to speak again. Then, with a half-groan of despair, he walked swiftly to the door. With his hand on the knob he paused and half-turned.

"Remember this," he said, in a low, tense voice. "If you divorce Peggy you will spend the rest of your life on your knees to her and her God, begging them to forgive you!"

Adamston waited for him to go.

"And you may remind your of your word."

Adamston looked at him—only looked. "I beg your pardon. I thought not." And he was gone.

Ellerdine to the Rescue

WHEN Ellerdine left Adamston he could not know any more than Collingwood could the struggle he was surely shaking the man of his coldly adjusted mental poise. Logic seemed then every fact in him Peggy was guilty. Instinct shouted above the voice of logic that she was most surely innocent. Love for his wife and confidence in the final issues that destroyed the fabric of his legal training.

But, as we say, Ellerdine could not know this. Therefore, as gave himself up more to the pain of thinking and resented to an idea that had occurred to him even as Peggy sank to the floor and the courtroom was cleared.

He knew now that Peggy could not have had anything to do with the deliberate plan to lure her into a footprint. Some one beside Collingwood must have known, because he did not believe that Collingwood had written the damning letter. Suspicion, he felt, rested on him not Lady Airwit. It was his duty to clear up the mystery of the letter. With a weary sigh he started the slowly revolving wheels of his mind once more. His promised himself brain fever to a certainty after it should be all over.

As he walked slowly along the Embankment after leaving Adamston Dicky began whirling out a thin cobweb. He remembered that Sir Robert had said that the letter had been submitted to every well-known hand-writing expert in London and that none of them had been able to throw any light on the question of its authorship. It had been compared with the handwriting of everyone in their party and everyone connected with them. The experts could do nothing.

Now a more brilliant man than Ellerdine would have at once abandoned this line of investigation and attempted to approach the solution of the mystery by an untried route. This plan would apparently have entailed the invention of a new system of procedure, something that was entirely beyond the mental powers of Lord Ellerdine. Therefore he continued to cogitate on the subject of handwriting and after an hour or two he bethought him that a year or two before an American had detected the author of a forgery check by means of which the said author had looted Ellerdine's slender bank account.

"A Beastly Mess"

This American was only a professional expert on demand and was not well-known in London and Dicky thought it probable that he had not been consulted. He hailed a cab, told through his note book and at last found the address in a row of rather expensive flats. He quickly followed his card into the expert's library and was greeted with a smile and a handclasp.

"I hope it is not another professional visit?" said Mr. Bywater, the expert.

"But it is, my dear fellow," protested his lordship, solemnly.

He exclaimed and looked instantly concerned. He drew a chair up facing Ellerdine's. "Not another clumsy raid on your funds?"

Mrs. O'Brien—Why will you "metorious commendation" at school last week, Mrs. O'Brien? Why will you do it?

Mrs. Proudman—Our Willy got "meritorious commendation" at school last week, and I'm so proud of him I don't think that too severe a punishment.

Mrs. O'Brien—Oh, I see. Well, I don't think it's a crime, but dash me if I don't think that too severe a punishment.

"No, my dear fellow, it's nothing of the sort," replied his lordship, pulling at his mustache. He felt a gentle-man's natural reluctance to go into so delicate a matter with a comparative stranger. "Only, anything I can do, Lord Ellerdine——" He paused and waited, feeling languidly back in his chair. With a hesitancy and circumlocution Dicky told the story and before he was fairly through the American was sitting on the forward edge of his chair, his brows drawn together, following every word.

"And you say the London experts could do nothing with it?"

Keep Your Wick Turned Up

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

POWER dwells with cheerfulness.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Dear girls, and married women, and old ladies, did you ever think what that word "cheer" means?

It signifies hope, encouragement, solace, comfort and ease of mind.

Being in trouble is never happy, but may be cheerful, which means so much more. Cheerfulness may be a gift, but there is no doubt that it is a faculty which may be cultivated.

Those to whom cheerfulness is second nature have the greatest gift heaven can bestow, but to those who haven't it, and desire it, I submit a method adopted by "The Little Man in Grey" in the poem:

With shabby cuffs and sneery heart he goes upon his way.

And when he peers into his purse and finds there's nothing there,
Instead of being in a doleful dumps he simply doesn't care:

For you see," chirrups he,
"His sneery mannikin,
"I'm only up for the day.
Is not to care a pin!
Not to care, not to care,
Not to care a pin!

"Power dwells with cheerfulness." The girl whose lover temporarily strays from her side has a power to bring him back that cannot be equalled. If She Is Cheerful.

Tears spoil her pretty cheeks, dim her pretty eyes and make her an unattractive lie wonders he didn't stray sooner.

Cheerfulness gives a spring to her step, a light to her eyes and a smile to her lips. She grows more attractive, and he looks upon himself as a stupid, unappreciative man who would let a girl like that get away from him, and he resolves he will NOT let her get away.

She becomes popular with men and women, and, my dear girls, there is no popularity worth as much as that shared equally by the sexes.

Cheerfulness is not dependent on possession, nor the lack of it. One can be cheerful by enjoying a fine day, when all else fails.

Smile back at the sun. See the pleasant things when you look out of your window, and LEARN TO LOOK FOR THEM. Here is a little poem by John Vance Cheney called "The Happiest Heart," that may help you:

Who finds the heroes of the sun
Shall lord it but a day;
Before the lonely deed were done,
And kept the humble way.
The rust will find the sword of fame,
The dust will hide the crown;
Ay, none shall hang so high his name
But time will tear it down.
THE HAPPIEST HEART that ever beat
Was in some quiet breast
THAT FOUND THE COMMON DAY-LIGHT SWEET,
And left to heaven the rest.

That is preached by a road marked CHEERFULNESS.

And the way to find that road is to keep your wick turned up.

Work Begets Work

GEORGE W. PERKINS, the financier, was talking about the scarcity of the $10,000-a-year man—the man actually worth a $10,000 salary.

"The advantage of the $10,000-a-year man," he said, "is that alone that he works splendidly—it is also that under him everybody else works splendidly. There's a Chinese proverb," he said, "that expresses exactly what I mean.

"'If the farmer is diligent, the soil will not be lazy.'"

SOME WORKING GIRLS LOSE TOO MUCH TIME

Two Girls Tell How To Avoid It.

There is nothing that teaches more than experience. We therefore quote from the letters of two girls who suffered and were restored to health. The same remedy is within reach of all.

Brooklyn, N. Y. — "Prior to taking the first bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered agony every month, but after several months' use of this medicine had been taken a while I felt a little better, and after taking seven bottles of it I feel that I can truly say I have no more pain or inconvenience.

"As I am out in the business world as a stenographer, I come in contact with many girls, and when the opportune moment arrives I tell them about the Vegetable Compound and I know that quite a few are taking it."—HELEN CANET, 556 Dean St.

Another Girl's Experience.

Tishomingo, Okla. — "I am a stenographer and book-keeper, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved my life. I am enjoying the best of health now, but was suffering from female troubles and painful periods, and could have backache, headache and fainting spells. If any woman would like to write to me I will gladly answer her letter and tell her what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. MATTIE COPENHAVER, Tishomingo, Okla.

The Chinese Mind

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

A REPUBLIC in China! What a shock it is to those who have never thought of the land of the dragon flag as other than the abode of a swarming pigtailed, blouse-bagged, egre-eyed, lemon-skinned race, vegetating in an opium dream, and contentedly following the dogged current of a civilization which was already superannuated when Cleopatra floated down the Cydnus in her perfumed barge to riddle the Roman armor with the purple-plumed arrows of Cupid.

We Americans, in our breezy, Western way, are apt to think that the republican idea was born less than 200 years ago on this new continent. But 500 years before Christ Confucius wrote in his "Book of History":

"The people should be cherished.
And should not be down-trodden.
The people are the root of a country,
And if the root is firm the country will be tranquil."

We are apt to think that the moral strength of family life and love is an Anglo-Saxon development. But long before the Christian Era a Chinese poet put into the mouth of a deserted wife these lines (Professor Giles's translation):

"Ah, bad in hand to face old age!
Instead, I turn a bitter page.
O for the river banks of yore:
O for the much-loved marshy shore;
The hours of girlhood, with my hair
Unsthered as we lingered there.
The words we spoke, that seemed so true,
I little thought that I should rue;
I little thought the vows we swore
Would some day bind us two no more."

We are apt to deem that the commercial spirit or joy in intellectual things is the peculiar possession of the Latin Western races. But listen to the words of another ancient poet of old China:

"A scholar lives on yonder hill,
His clothes are rarely whole to view;
The times a meagre fare yields him.
Once in ten years his hat is new.
A wretched wo'—and yet the while
He ever wears a sunny smile."

We are apt to flatter ourselves that true sentiment is found only in our own souls. But long ago a Chinese poet thus described the reward of a girl who, gathering her dear flowers, tenderly buried them in the garden:

"Farewell, dear flowers, forever now,
Thus buried as 'twas best.
I have not yet divined when I
With you shall sink to rest.
See how when Spring begins to fail
Birds opening flow'rel fades;
So, too, there is a time of age
And death for beauteous maids.
For—when the fleeting Spring is gone,
And day of misery dire,
Flowers fall and lovely maidens die,
And both are known no more."

We are apt to think that the saving grace of humor was reserved for us. But see what the Chinese poet, Li Yuh-ming, wrote in mocking flattery of a Manchu lord who, while fiddling with his cronies, failed to get a bite, although everybody else caught a good catch:

"'Tis rapture in the warm Spring days
To sit and play a lute
In the green pool, where deep and still
The darkling waters rise,
And if the fishes dare not touch the bait
They know that only dragons are a fitting sport for kings."

After all, these yellow people have souls, and brains, and wit, and love freedom, and have a sense of humor. Their aspirations, and a rich land stuffed with treasures of coal and iron, should open a future and why should not they, too, catch the inspiring glow of republican life, and have a race of republican liberty? They have fought for their rights in the past. Why is it this brighter age, when its sunshine is streaming over the world, they should not achieve it, cheered by a million hearts and the almighty goddesses, seated in her golden throne between the oceans?

Up-to-Date Jokes

"Yes," said Mrs. Slowgood, "I like Mary Ellen, she's the cookery class. Besides, it teaches charity, as all the dishes are distributed free to the poor."

"Yes," said Slowgood, "I know poverty is a crime, but dash me if I don't think that too severe a punishment."

Mrs. Proudman—Our Willy got "meritorious commendation" at school last week, Mrs. O'Brien. Why will you do it?

Mrs. O'Brien—Oh, I see. Well, I don't think that too severe a punishment.

"No, my dear fellow, it's nothing of the sort," replied his lordship, pulling at his mustache. He felt a gentleman's natural reluctance to go into so delicate a matter with a comparative stranger.

"Only, anything I can do, Lord Ellerdine——" He paused and waited, feeling languidly back in his chair. With hesitancy and circumlocution Dicky told the story and before he was fairly through the American was sitting on the forward edge of his chair, his brows drawn together, following every word.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Hopeful—No, only one. Me and a girl.

"I see you have my pamphlet on your desk," said the economist. "What do you think of it?"

The merchant and between," answered the heartless friend, "it's too light as an argument, and not heavy enough for a paperweight."

Teacher: "Now, Tommy, what is a hypocrite?"

Tommy: "A boy that comes to school smiling."

Some probable investors were being shown over a building estate in the country.

"Come this way, gentlemen," the agent said. "On the rising ground you can see the Isle of Dogs."

"Or the land agent," quietly remarked one of the party.

Cause for Gladness

"I'WAR eventide. The boy stood on the bridge, clapping his hands vigorously. Beyond the brow of the hill a dull-red glow told of the sunset.

"Ah, little boy," remarked the stranger, who was rather near-sighted, "it does my heart good to see you appreciate you beautiful cloud effect!"

"Yes, sir," replied the lad; "I've been watching it for ten minutes."

Upon the boy's face there lay a look of peace and bliss.

"A real poet, without a doubt. And do you watch sunsets often, little boy?"

"Sunsets? No, sir; I'm watching the garage! That's the village school burning down!"

"Speak No Scandal"

WITH each new feature of our daily life we get new words and phrases.

Two women were recently discussing an elderly bachelor of their acquaintance, who was a terrible gossip.

"He's got chauffeur's tongue," said one of them angrily.

"Chauffeur's tongue?" asked the other "What's that? Is it one of the new disease, like aeroplane squint—eh? Does it come from going 100 for?"

"No," said the first woman coldly; "it comes from running people down."

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

COPPER SHARES NOT SO HIGH; METAL STILL UP

By W. H. ROSS

STATE STREET, March 26—Midday: The Boston market opened steady today, but there was less movement and range to the business than yesterday. Prices were rather irregular at he start. It held quite steady considering the depression in New York.

During the morning North Butte, Amalgamated, Giroux, Calumet & Arizona, Shannon, were among issues which were lower, while Granby-Cananea, Miami and Shattuck-Arizona advanced.

Profit taking caused recessions from the start in the New York market, where the leading copper issues ranged some.

The Boston News Bureau quotes one of the largest copper sellers as stating: "I am selling copper for June delivery at better than 15¼ cents. I look for higher prices."

Stock Prices Open Lower.

Recessions were the rule when the New York market got under way and profit realizing in American Smelting caused Guggenheim to lead the list in point declines, closing at 87½. Steel common got into the running on an unchanged basis, but the moment there was any trading activity in this quarter it receded ¾. Reading and Union Pacific lost ½ each. There were declines of a number of other stocks, but they were mostly fractional.

Some of the specialties were rather consolidated one clubbed a point to 114, and London buying helped Canadian Pacific into a demand on this side which elevated its price half a point. Baltimore & Ohio moved up ¼, and there was considerable buying of Erie issues.

Prices on the curb had irregularity as their most marked characteristic.

Americans were in good demand in the London market, and the day started the day in good demand and with a firm tone. The exchange rate on this class of shares there is 4.81 per cent. It was rumored in Capel Court that striking coal miners are showing a disposition, under famine pressure, to go back to work regardless of what is done in Parliament. This rumor had the effect of quite a little. Canadian Pacific sold higher. Coppers were stronger. Rio Tintos moved up to 74⅞, another new high for this movement. De Beers at 15-16 were quoted.

In the copper market metal prices went still higher. Spot sold at 69⅝ @ 70, call a million of 70. This was also the gain in futures, which sold as high as 69 5-8 @ 69 3-4.

Trend of the Copper Market.

Some of the optimistic copper for June delivery were made yesterday at the 15¾ cent rate and it is reported from New York that many transactions as high as 15¾ was paid. There is nothing but a mere statement behind that, however, for consumers are expecting another advance and then some more after that. It is thought that the Democratic victory will happen if it runs too far may be a repetition of the panic of 1907, when copper got enough copper into the market to cause a break of 25¾ cents and then there was a movement towards the other extreme. Many of the big trusts and companies which could produce cheaply could follow between the oceans?

It is said that European buying of the red metal was heavy today, and that large orders took copper up to the end of June. The fact is asserted that the lake was the one of the reasons for the price rise in the Boston market. There is more copper being used in Continental Europe than ever before, and the British coal strike ended and the industrial situation clears up in England a big demand should set in for that country, for the present time. One statement made in New York regarding the metal situation is:

"On the strength of the advance the manipulators of the shares on the stock exchange have boosted Amalgamated Copper up and caused it 8¾, a new high record for the present movement. Smelting has gained over two points to 89¾. The speculative way in which these issues are handled by the professional manipulators in their own interests is a matter of record, and it is very little public buying has attended the rise.

Features of Yesterday's Market.

Copper shares did not cut as much of a figure in the New York trading yesterday as they did on several days last week. The sales of Amalgamated, Anaconda and Smelting and Utah Copper were about 188,000 shares, which was a much smaller total than has been the case when they were noted on Friday and Saturday last. Still there was a big showing, even the total sales of all shares were more than 1,000,000, a market which was broad enough to include in its transactions nearly all securities.

The buying of coppers and all other shares in New York or London account is estimated to have totalled 20,000 shares, but the selling on foreign orders is also estimated at 80,000. It was a very unusual market day.

Financial News in Brief.

Within a year the number of shareholders of the Pennsylvania road has increased 7,744. The total number on the latest reckoning was 73,507.

The Manoel Wireless Telegraph Company has absorbed the United Wireless Telegraph Company, and has litigation over patent infringement in regard to the Fleming valve. The United Wireless claim has lasted five years. United Wireless has 40,000 shares of stock outstanding. A decision in favor of the Marconi Company, handed down by Judge Lacombe of the United States Circuit Court, directors says it is true that in the event of the decision being adverse to the United Wireless it would be necessary to assess the stock, and some would not pay the assessment and cause death or so much confusion that the company would be helpless, but there is nothing to say about the result, as the decision is not yet rendered. The Marconi Company is doing a big business and has been for some time, and it is said that the United Wireless would have to be out on several lines.

AT THE

HENRY F. MILLER
PIANO WAREROOMS
395 BOYLSTON ST.

WE OFFER an attractive line of pianos by various makers, carefully selected with a MANUFACTURER'S KNOWLEDGE of piano value. New pianos at

$125, $150, $175, $190, $200, $215, $225,
$235, $255, $265, $275, $285 and $300

ON EASY INSTALMENT TERMS

$10 down and $5 per month (WITHOUT ADVANCING PRICES)

DO NOT sit at home and be "canvassed." Visit the different warerooms; investigate the "Piano-Club," "Certificate-Sale," "Puzzle-Contest" and all the other "schemes" that promise pianos at "half their real worth." Then come and inspect our offerings. You will find the pianos marked by us at from $175 to $255 are much better pianos in every way than the so-called "$250 or $300 piano" offered at great sacrifices (?) under the "scheme." REMEMBER, our prices are free from "canvasser's" profits and, from what we observe many other piano dealers ASK for their goods, we honestly believe a visit to our warerooms is likely to save you $100 on your piano purchase. We earnestly suggest that you take a little time and see for yourself.

The Progress of Man

Marvellous Has Been Our Progress, and Infinitely More Marvellous It Will Be

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner

It is a good thing for all of us to remember how marvellously man has progressed, what wonders he has achieved, and what wonders he may hope for, considering that this is the first generation in which man as a race HAS BEEN ABLE TO READ AND HAS BEEN FREED FROM PHYSICAL SUBORDINATION TO OTHER MEN.

It is horrible to see a young man put in jail for thirty years for a trivial offence.

But even that abominable punishment and miscarriage of justice stands for progress, when you remember that only a few years ago, a period covered by the lives of two men, a merchant in London committed perjury in a court of justice, swearing that the property that a young boy under fourteen had stolen from him was worth only a few shillings—underestimating the value of the property because if he had sworn that the property stolen by that boy was worth ten dollars THE BOY WOULD HAVE BEEN HANGED.

It is dreadful to think how we treat our criminals, how we add to the curse of poverty in infancy, the curse of temptation of drink, the lack of opportunity, the malformed brain; how we add to all of those misfortunes the crowning misfortune of a criminal education among criminals in jail, and then think that we are dealing out justice.

But our treatment of the criminal, stupid and ignorant as it is, still stands for progress, just as that primitive sled drawn by the human slave stands for progress. For at least now we put a man in jail for a few months for a petty crime—and only a few generations back we would take an ignorant boy of twelve or fourteen for the same crime AND HANG HIM.

Wherever you look, whatever question you study, you see progress.

Your imagination sees a camel rolling and lurching across the desert sand. And seated on top of the camel's hump, or between his two humps if he happens to have two, you see a lady, tired, flushed and rather seasick—and that's the Queen of Sheba, the most prosperous lady in the world, on her way to visit Solomon—considerable progress between that lady and the commercial traveler of to-day flying across the continent, cooled by an electric fan, lighted by electricity, getting air that has been filtered, sleeping peacefully and moderately safe from instant death, even on an American railroad.

You see Christopher Columbus starting out for this country in a tiny boat pushed by the wind. And today you can go all around the earth at an expense of a few hundred dollars. And you travel on a ship so big that its engines could lift Columbus' ship out of the water and tuck it away in some corner of a big deck and not notice the difference in freight. Progress there.

You go back only two lives, and you find a Governor of a great Southern State glorying in the fact that there was not a public school in his State, and hoping that there wouldn't be one for a hundred years. And now in the United States we have public schools educating twenty millions of children—and spending about two hundred millions a year on that education.

There is progress, great progress. But THERE IS ROOM FOR PROGRESS WHEN YOU CONSIDER THAT WE SPEND ON OUR ARMY AND NAVY, MACHINES PLANNED FOR MURDER, MORE THAN WE SPEND ON THE EDUCATION OF THE TWENTY MILLIONS OF CHILDREN.

Only a short time ago a woman worked day after day to make one shirt for one man, or she worked longer to make the woolen stuff from which later on by many days of work she would make a coat and the rest of a suit.

Today a child can attend to a great machine that turns out cloth faster than thousands of women could have turned it out. That one machine will clothe thousands and free thousands of the slaves of the needle. Progress there—but room for more progress, since our undeveloped civilization combines with the marvellous genius of machinery and the great wealth of unlimited production the inconceivable brutality of child labor.

Only a few years ago, and all the labor done on this earth was done by the muscles in the arms of men, or by animals roughly trained and unskilful.

Now we do our work with everything EXCEPT THE MUSCLES OF MEN.

We run engines with gas.

We run automobiles, pumps and machinery of all kinds with explosions of gasoline.

We run our heavy locomotives with electricity stolen from the clouds and harnessed—that wonderful servant, steam, we look upon as old-fashioned and out of date.

We pick up enormous masses of iron and move them with magnets. The steel rails that carry our trains are moved from place to place by these magnets—tons of them lifted at the same second by the mysterious electric force in the magnet, and no human hand touches them.

We harness the waterfall of Niagara and light the cities for miles around, and run the machinery and the street cars.

A few years ago the rich man in life thought only of his selfish dissipation and pleasure. And dying, he worried only about his own unimportant and usually worthless soul. He did nothing to help others while he lived. And he foolishly left his money in the foolish and idiotic effort to buy eternal happiness hereafter.

That kind of savagery has gone. Men no longer have their wives murdered and thrown into the grave with them to keep them company above.

The rich man of today knows that he will be judged now certainly, and hereafter undoubtedly by what he does FOR OTHER HUMAN BEINGS NOW AND AFTER HE DIES.

And today, instead of the rich man with his thousands of servants in livery, you have the quiet little man playing his quiet little game of golf, giving out his quiet little newspaper interview, and spending his powerful tens of millions on education, on hospitals, in every way FOR OTHER HUMAN BEINGS.

And when he dies, it is no longer found that he has left his money in some way that he imagines will buy peace and unearned happiness for his soul. You find that he has left his money for more libraries and more hospitals and more efforts TO HELP OTHER HUMAN BEINGS—THERE IS PROGRESS.

Glass That Would Bend and Not Break Would Be a Great Boon to Mankind

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

READING of the sufferings of aviators from the freezing wind when high in the air on a cold day, I am reminded of an invention for which the world has long been waiting, and the necessity for which grows stronger every day.

It is flexible, malleable glass that is needed.

With such glass a small curved screen that would not be broken by the wind, or by an accidental blow, and not presenting a surface large enough to interfere with the progress of an aeroplane by its air resistance, could easily be made which would protect the aviator from the cutting wind produced by the speed of his machine.

Has a Thousand Uses

Such glass would instantly find a thousand useful applications. It would be indispensable for automobile screens, which are now made of broad sheets of flat, brittle glass, and are often sources of danger. It would take the place of ordinary glass for car windows, which are also dangerous to passengers, being likely to burst into shivers in case of accident. House windows would also be made of this glass, not only because it would be more lasting, but because it could be shaped into many forms of beauty and convenience. A curved glass window is now an expensive rarity. With malleable glass, which could be bent and hammered into any shape desired, such windows would be at the disposal of all, and it is easy to see what charming effects could be wrought with them.

Roofs of glass, colored, if desired, could be made which would not be in danger of destruction by the first hailstorm. One could walk over them as safely as over a roof of tin or tarred pebbles. A bootjack, flung by some excited householder awakened at midnight by a feline serenade, would not be followed by an expensive crash. Even flat windows made of malleable glass would be infinitely safer than the present brittle ones. The terror which the schoolboys, imitating the exploits of the great heroes of the diamond, inspire in the minds of housewives would be banished forever. No more broken window panes, no more unnecessary glaziers' bills.

Is a Lost Art

This is no dream, remember. It is simply a recurrence to a lost art. The Encyclopedia Americana states that it is a well-known fact that the ancients possessed the secret of making malleable glass. It has been lost, that is all. There is a story which Wendell Phillips used to delight in telling in his celebrated lecture on "The Lost Arts" of a Roman who in the time of Tiberius brought back to Rome from some Eastern country a glass cup, beautifully chased, which, to the astonishment of all beholders, he dashed with all his force upon the pavement, and, instead of being broken, it was simply dented. He picked it up, and, with a hammer brought it back into shape.

In the time of Pliny there was brought to Rome a kind of glass, perfectly transparent that on being suspended for twenty hours stretched itself out into a long ribbon, which could then be wound around the waist.

Why was the process lost? Evidently because it was known only to the discoverers of the method, who could find no protection in those days when there were no patent laws except by keeping their operations secret. But if it has once been done it can be done again. In fact, many efforts have been made to solve this problem.

One Invention Known

In 1903 a man named Kaufield, in Indiana, invented a kind of malleable glass which would stand very rough usage, but more needs to be done. What is wanted, and what we shall unquestionably get in time, is a malleable glass that can be made on the largest scale and that will be as tough as metal.

Here is the inventor's chance. A great fortune awaits the lucky discoverer, and he will bestow a great boon upon mankind.

The Leader To Be

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1912, National News Association.

WHAT shall the leader be in that great day
When we who sleep and dream that we are slaves
Shall wake and know that Liberty is ours?
Mark well that word—not YOURS, not MINE, but OURS.
For through the mingling of the separate streams
Of individual protest and desire,
In one united sea of PURPOSE lies
The course to Freedom.

When Progression takes
Her undisputed right of way, and sinks
The old traditions and conventions where
They may not rise, what shall the leader be?

No mighty warrior skilled in crafts of war,
Sowing earth's fertile furrows with dead men
And staining crimson God's cerulean sea,
To prove his prowess to a dimdering world.

Nor yet a monarch with a silly crown
Perched on an empty head, an in-bred heir
To senseless titles and anemic blood.

No ruler, purchased by the perjured votes
Of striving demagogues whose god is gold.
Not one of these shall lead to Liberty.
The weakness of the world cries out for STRENGTH,
The sorrow of the world cries out for HOPE,
Its suffering cries for KINDNESS.

He who leads
Must then be strong and hopeful as the dawn
That rises unafraid and full of joy
Above the blackness of the darkest night.
He must be kind to every living thing;
And full of LOVE for all created life.
Oh, not in war shall his great prowess lie,
Nor shall he find his pleasure in the chase.
Too great for slaughter, friend of man and beast,
Touching the borders of the Unseen Realms
And bringing down to earth their mystic fires
To light our troubled pathways, wise and kind
And human to the core, this shall be he,
The coming leader of the coming time.

The Ways of Women Are as Varied as the Shells of the Seashore

Mere Man Need Never Hope to Penetrate the Mystery of Her Nature—She Doesn't Understand It Herself

By FRANCES L. GARDSIDE

HOME to the modern woman is the place she goes to change her dress to go somewhere else.

If she hears an unmarried man complain of the hot weather she makes him an iced lemonade, but let the same man make the complaint after she has married him and she will tell him he ought to be thankful he hasn't a corset on.

If she receives no attention from men she thinks her cross father frightens them away, forgetting that wild Indians couldn't do that if the right man came along.

It is hard to get her to sing in company, but after she has started something desperate must be done to get her to stop.

When she is a bride and doesn't know her husband very well, she exaggerates his illness, but after a few years he has to die to prove it.

"Man's Selfishness" Her Hobby

It makes no difference if women meet to pray, to gossip or to study poetry, some time during the session some one starts a discussion on the subject "The Selfishness of Men," and then all else in the world is forgotten while every woman present draws up her skirts and wades in.

A woman never ends when she has anything else to do.

If she refuses to lend any man all the money she has without security, it is because he never looked at her with eyes of tender sympathy and said: "You poor little girl!"

If she admits her husband's goodness, it is in connection with something he has done for her kin.

When she travels as far as ten miles on a railroad train, she gives the impression to those who get on later that she started in New York and is on her way to Manila.

When she reads of a horse "champing restively on its bit," she doesn't know exactly what it means, but she feels that she often does it. In a similar way she compares herself with the bird that beats against the walls of its cage.

Will Not Throw Them Back

It makes no difference how many scream at her when she has drawn in her line, "He is worthless; throw him back into the water!" she will not throw him back if she thinks any other woman wants him.

She gets cross when she has to get up to let her husband in, but she doesn't mind it at all to get up and let the cat out.

She gets so many compliments as a girl her head is turned, but it is turned square back again with the years. As a wife and mother the only compliments she hears are when the children cry for her.

She may have no one to visit, and her husband may not be able to afford it, but she always goes on a journey if a fortune teller told her she was going.

Love Story Restores Her

When she is cross, or nervous, the pie is a failure, or the baby is fretful, she can be restored to a normal state by some one removing the pie and baby from her vision and handing her a love story. If it has a count in it, and the heroine is wealthy and handsome, the woman of the baby and pie slips unconsciously into the place of the heroine before she has turned a page, and before the second chapter is ended the baby, the pie and all disquieting environments slide gently away, and when the story is finished and she returns to them, it is with a serene and happy mind.

For virtue conquered in the end, and everything came out as it should, and the happiness of the heroine becomes in a way no man could understand the happiness of the woman reader.
